Rafferty Once UCLA Student Agitator

By DAVID SHAW
Staff Writer

It was March 1937. In London, Winston Churchill was drafting a peace plan he hoped would end the Spanish Civil War. In Berlin, Adolf Hitler was seizing complete control of the German church. In Washington, President Roosevelt was urging congressional extension of the National Recovery Administration to meet the continuing crises of the Depression.

And in Los Angeles, a UCLA history major named Maxwell Lewis Rafferty Jr. was helping to formulate policy for a group of students organized to "rid UCLA of Communist activities."

(New Orleans), raised in the Midwest (Missouri and Iowa) and graduated from Beverly Hills High School, the product of an educational system that rewarded his intellectual achievements with rapid promotions that, he now says, "made me feel like a freak when I entered college."

In a 1966 newspaper column assailing this practice of "allowing bright youngsters to skip entire grades, Dr. Rafferty recalled his own college days as "winning, hellish days ... (with) all the doors slammed and locked except the ones marked "grind" and "book-worm."

IT'S BEEN more than 30 years since Dr. Rafferty was an undergraduate, of course, and he can certainly be forgiven a few minor lapses in memory — like forgetting he was 16 (not 15) when he attended his first class at UCLA.

But a study of Dr. Rafferty's college years — when his grades averaged about a C-plus — show he was far from the bored, unnoticed "grind" he now recalls with such exquisite agony.

Rafferty says, for example, his social life at UCLA was nil. The typical girl's reaction to him, he says, was "He's such a cute little fellow, but go out with him? Really my dear!"

Fraternities? "We're not rushing babies," he says he was told.

Campus politics? "We're not after the junior high vote," he remembers hearing.

Yet Dr. Rafferty did date frequently at UCLA, and, in fact, met his first wife

DIAL 432-3451

ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Pie in the Sky

Q. My son is in the Army Medics in a hospital in Saigon, South Vietnam. In late September he will celebrate his 20th year in the service, and we would like to send him a dozen pizzas. How should we go about it? E.F.G., Long Beach.

A. Fresh pizza pies are available to servicemen from restaurants in Saigon if you would like to send your son the money to buy enough for his outfit. Or, you might choose to send him packaged pizza mixes which are very scarce over there, said Chaplain Richard Johnson, assistant post chaplain at Ft. McArthur in San Pedro. Chaplain Johnson has just returned from Vietnam. He said if you send ready-made pizzas to Vietnam, they will have to be shipped frozen by commercial airline. Your son will have to meet the plane and arrange to have the pizzas cooked immediately.

On the Lambs

Q. What has happened to Dana and Ginger Lamb, authors and adventurers from Costa Mesa? I read their book, "Quest for the Lost City," published in 1951, but I've heard nothing about them since then. Mrs. M.W., Cypress.

A. Ginger Lamb died in 1966, and Dana Lamb is living in Hillsboro, N.M. Later this year, he plans to go to Baja California to explore the lost mission of Santa Isabel to gather material for a book he is writing. In February 1968, Lamb intends to photograph the birth of whales off Baja California. He tried once before, but the noise of the plane scared the whales and caused them to dive to the bottom. After photographing the calving grounds, Lamb and a partner will explore the "Lost World" in Bolivia. "I flew over it in 1966 and saw trails on top and a beautiful lake. It is a mesa formed by an eroded volcano and is about 12 miles wide and 25 miles long," he said. Besides planning for his travels, Lamb is editing films on his previous adventures and preparing them for distribution. Before Ginger's death, the Lambs explored an area east of the Andes Mountains in South America in search of a hidden Moorish city, supposedly built before the Spanish Conquistadors arrived. The Lambs made several adventure films in the early 1950s, which were shown on "Wide, Wide World." "Bold Journey" and other television shows. RKO Studios also produced a full-length feature film called "Quest for the Lost City," based on the Lambs' book.

Call for Help

Q. I am in desperate need of immediate psychiatric care, but have little money. Where can I go for help? W.G., South Gate.

A. You may call Help Line, 620-0144, a nondenominational counseling service for emergency psychiatric care. Their counselors will direct you to outpatient clinics and other facilities available at low cost. Theresa Williams, medical caseworker for the Southeast Mental Health Service, 1145 E. Compton Blvd., Compton, 631-8675, promised to help you if you will contact her. The Family Service of Los Angeles, located in your area at 16751 Lakewood Blvd., Downey, 923-4545, and the Salvation Army Counseling Service, 2746 E. Florence Ave., Huntington Park, 583-1973, will also provide guidance for emergency psychiatric treatment. Los Angeles County General Hospital, 1200 N. State St., Los Angeles, 225-3115, and Harbor General Hospital, 1000 W. Carson Blvd., Torrance, 773-2201, both have psychiatric clinics where you may go for help.

Nailed Down

Q. On June 16 I mailed a check for $1 to Pretty Feet, Chemway Corp. in Wayne, N.J., for a pair of nail clippers. My canceled check was returned. I was told it would take four weeks to get the clippers, but I have waited over two months and have received nothing. What is wrong? M.A.E., Long Beach.

A. Your order apparently was lost or misplaced, said Harvey Chandler, senior manager for the Chemway Corp. He will see that your order is filled immediately with another pair of nail clippers.

String Along

Q. Can ACTION LINE tell me where to find those long strings of beads that can be hung across a doorway? I think they would make quite a conversation piece strung across the entrance to my den, but I haven't any idea where to buy them. R.R.C., Long Beach.

A. Vari-colored glass beads, available in any length

Hecklers Besiege Humphrey

Greeted in N.Y. by 'Dump Hump' Shouts, Banners

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey arrived Sunday night after a day spent with friends and neighbors in Minnesota to be greeted by hecklers, pickets and heavy security precautions.

The vice president is expected to make an appearance in the Labor Day parade today, tape some television and radio interviews and meet with Democratic leaders in an attempt to shore up the badly split state Democratic Party.

About 50 persons met his plane at Kennedy International Airport, but were kept behind a fence 200 feet away. They greeted him with both cheers and boos and some carried signs that read "Dump the Hump."

Humphrey climbed quickly into a limousine and headed for the Waldorf Astoria Hotel where a cordon of police kept 500 demonstrators a half block away.

The vice president was warned in advance about the demonstrators. He arrived at the hotel and apparently at one point was in earshot of a group shouting "Dump the Hump," but took no notice of them.

A HEAVY security force of both uniformed and plainclothes policemen were deployed around the Waldorf. The vice president was in for more of the same today for the parade up Fifth Avenue, including spotters on buildings along the way.

The New York delegation at the Democratic National Convention split almost evenly on the voting between Humphrey and Sen. Eugene McCarthy but many of the McCarthy backers have remained bitter and openly hostile to Humphrey and say they won't back him for the presidency.

Paul O'Dwyer, the Democratic senatorial candidate, has stated he may vote for, but not actively support the vice president.

Humphrey entered a comparatively hostile New York after a pleasant day in Waverly, Minn., where he called for a "new day" for Americans and said the top priority of his life is

Second Quake Rips Iran

LONELY AND FORLORN, a young boy sits amidst the rubble of the homes of Kakhak, a town in eastern Iran, believed to be near the center of the earthquake which devastated a 750-square-mile area northeast of the Iranian capital of Tehran.

Death Toll Now Stands at 8,222

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Another strong earth tremor jolted northeastern Iran Sunday 20 hours after a four-minute earthquake wiped out entire communities and killed more than 8,000 persons.

Specific damage from the Sunday tremor could not be immediately determined because of the widespread devastation already caused by Saturday's earthquake.

The Red Lion and Sun Society, Iran's equivalent to the Red Cross, said search crews already had recovered the bodies of 8,222 persons from the devastated region near the borders with the Soviet Union and Afghanistan. Another 2,962 persons were seriously injured in the 15 towns bearing the brunt of the earthquake that struck without warning Saturday afternoon. Thousands were homeless.

Observers feared the death tolls would continue to mount. The quakes hit exactly six years after the worst earthquake in Iran's history killed 12,225 persons on Sept. 1, 1961.

THE RELIEF society, could give no estimates of casualties in Sunday's quake, which brought more mud huts with stones on their roofs crashing down.

Many of the victims of Saturday's quake died in the debris of their mud brick homes. Soldiers dug through the wreckage for possible survivors while relief agencies rushed in supplies to prevent further deaths from famine, pestilence and the desert cold.

Relief and rescue officials said their efforts were hampered by the same lack of communications which left it to foreign seismological stations to give Tehran

Romanian Invasion Fears Cool Southland Beaches Brace for 10-Foot-High Waves

By BILL HOMER, Staff Writer

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Latest intelligence information received from eastern Europe has satisfied the U.S. that a Soviet invasion of Romania is not imminent, U.S. officials said Sunday night.

The officials declined to discuss the content of the intelligence, other than to deny it contained any assurance from Moscow that no occupation would take place.

Since Friday afternoon, unconfirmed intelligence received in Washington had raised the possibility of further Soviet military action in eastern Europe.

On the basis of those reports, President Johnson inserted a few paragraphs into a prepared speech, warning "would-be" aggressors not to misjudge American policy and thereby permit themselves to "unleash the dogs of war."

Wind-whipped, seven-foot-high waves generated 1,000 miles out at sea by Hurricane Liza Sunday night crashed down on Cabrillo Beach and threatened to couple with an expected six-foot high tide tonight at Newport Beach.

Lifeguards at Cabrillo said the big breakers started crashing over the breakwater late last night.

Cabrillo was the scene of a boat smashup earlier in the day.

Meanwhile, Newport Beach lifeguards said their city is girding for high waves expected when a 6.1-foot tide comes in at about 7:35 p.m.

Six-foot-high breakers pounded the Newport shoreline Sunday night, but failed to inflict new damage on waterfront homes that were partially undermined by swirling seas last week.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said Liza, breeding 80 m.p.h., is expected to keep sending huge ocean swells racing toward the Southland coast until late Tuesday.

Five to eight-foot breakers are forecast for southward-facing beach areas, according to the Weather Bureau.

Officials at Long Beach were keeping tabs on breakwater surf activity, and Laguna Beach lifeguards were in readiness in case six-foot swells reported there grow in size.

Nearly 180,000 persons flocked to beaches from Venice to Laguna Sunday as water temperatures averaging 67 degrees at eight Southland beach areas were cut by steadily increasing wave activity. Crowds were below average for a holiday weekend.

More than 150 swimmers were rescued from the surf. Lifeguards are preparing for even more rescues today, with expectation of a heavier turnout since this is officially the last day of the summer "vacation season."

TRAFFIC TOLL MOUNTING

United Press International

The nation's holiday traffic death toll climbed sharply Sunday, nearly equalling the record pace of highway fatalities set during the 1966 Labor Day weekend when 636 persons were killed.

A United Press International count at 11 p.m. showed 389 persons killed in traffic accidents since the holiday began at 6 p.m. local time Friday.

Drownings took 37 other lives and plane accidents killed 8.

Michigan and Texas led the nation with 27 traffic deaths each. California had 23; Illinois, 22; Ohio, 19; New York and Pennsylvania, 18 each, and Iowa, 17.

The National Safety Council estimated in advance of the three-day weekend that from 575 to 675 persons would be killed in traffic during the 78-hour holiday period that ends at midnight tonight.

In Sunday's worst accident, eight North Dakota teen-agers were killed in a two-car collision near Jamestown, N.D., that only one 16-year-old girl survived.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS Film, TV Actor Dennis O'Keefe Dies

Combined News Services
Dennis O'Keefe, a bright, breezy fast-talking Irishman who starred in scores of movies as an action hero or light comedian, died Saturday night in Santa Monica. He was 60.

O'Keefe underwent surgery for lung cancer in October, 1967.

Tall, husky and blond with an infectious grin and irrepressible manner, he was during the 1930s and 1940s one of the movies' busiest performers. In the 1950s and 1960s he made films, usually as a sleuth in crime pictures like "Chicago Syndicate," "Las Vegas Shakedown" and "Inside Detroit."

He directed as well as started in "The Diamond Wizard" and "Angela" and wrote scripts under his pen name, Jonathan Ricks.

O'Keefe's light-hearted screen personality wasn't forced. He was the same off screen. When he embarked on his television venture, "the Dennis O'Keefe Show," in 1958, he commented: "If it works, great. If it doesn't, fortunately, it's not a matter of life and death. This is just another facet of show business."

He was born in Fort Madison, Iowa, as Edward Vane Flanagan Jr. His mother and father — known on the vaudeville circuit as Flanagan and Edwards, "The Rollicking Twosome" — traveled a route that brought the family to Hollywood in 1918.

By the time he was 16, Dennis was writing scripts and gags for the "Our Gang" comedy series and working as a movie extra. He did every kind of job around the studio for seven years before he was discovered by actor Clark Gable. Gable ordered a screen test for the young actor, and a few months later Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer gave him his first leading role and his new name — Dennis O'Keefe.

Rockets Belt Da Nang

Combined News Services
SAIGON, Monday — Communist forces shelled Da Nang — South Vietnam's second largest city — with 122mm rockets early today, killing 10 Vietnamese civilians and one U.S. Marine. Twenty-six missiles dropped on the city, which serves as the principal base for Allied troops in South Vietnam's northern quarter. The attack wounded 40 other civilians and three South Vietnamese soldiers.

INTERNATIONAL
The rocket attack followed a series of battles in the northern region Sunday that left 324 North Vietnamese regulars dead. The battles occurred as Allied troops attempted to sidetrack a new Communist offensive in the north. There were other Communist predawn attacks on Tam Ky 342 miles northeast of Saigon and at Dien Ban subsector 13 miles south of Da Nang. Casualties in the assaults were described as "light." The big rockets — each packing nearly 15 pounds of TNT in its nose — screamed into five military installations in the Da Nang area in addition to dropping on the city of 230,000 itself. The Communist rocketeers set up their firing sites south of the city and launched the 45-minute attack under cover of heavy clouds. Three of the missiles smashed into a residential district and 12 more exploded along the city's Riverside Drive. Three others exploded on the edge of a South Vietnamese military installation.

Students Warned in Mexico
MEXICO CITY — In the midst of one of the greatest dissident student movements in Mexico's history, President Gustavo Diaz warned Sunday that he was ready to use armed force to put down "systematic provocation" to disorder and to insure the opening of the Olympic Games as scheduled Oct. 12. But the president tempered his toughness with a promise to consider some of the demands put forward by students and with an affirmation of his respect for the autonomy of the national university, one of the major centers of dissidents.

Hijacked Airliner Returned
ROME — The $7.5-million Israeli airliner hijacked by Palestinian commandos five weeks ago was handed over to Israeli authorities Sunday by the Italian government. The El Al Boeing 707 landed in Rome after being released by the Algerian government. The airliner was piloted by a French crew on the flight from Algiers to Rome. The seven crewmen hijacked with the plane and the last five Israeli passengers still in Algerian hands were freed Saturday and went on to Tel Aviv from Rome earlier Sunday.

Aba Falls to Nigerians
PORT HARCOURT, Nigeria — The Nigerians have taken Aba, largest of three main towns left to the secessionist Biafrans. Elements of the Nigerian army have pushed north of the town, which was an administrative and communications center before its population fled the federal advance. Before the war Aba had a population of 131,000.

Mass Arrests in Czechoslovakia

NATIONAL Arrest Triggers City Violence

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. — A policeman's effort to arrest a woman in a theater in Newport News' Negro business district triggered an outburst of violence that left one man dead, the policeman beaten, three stores burned and scores of store windows smashed Sunday. Police estimated that 150 persons, nearly all Negroes, took part in the four-hour disorders that broke out shortly after midnight and finally were quelled by an army of city and state police about 4 a.m. Newport News' City Council in an extraordinary session Sunday afternoon gave Police Chief W. R. Peach power to "regulate, restrict or prohibit" the assembly of persons and their movement about the city. Mayor Donald Hyatt told the councilmen Newport News was "in imminent threat of civil commotion and disturbance in the nature of a riot" and said: "This constitutes clear and present danger." All was quiet and no curfew had been set late Sunday.

Fatal Gun Battle in Harlem
NEW YORK — An off-duty transit patrolman was slain and two housing-project guards wounded Sunday in a pre-dawn gun battle in Harlem. The dead man was Benjamin Fleming, 25. He had been shot three times, in the chest and abdomen after an argument in a parking lot. The guards, both privately employed and in uniform, were Lloyd Garner, 41, of Massapequa, L.I., and Wilson Meanes, 42, of Manhattan. They were listed in serious condition with chest wounds.

School Strike Looms in N.Y.
NEW YORK — There is a "fifty-fifty" chance New York City's public schools will not open on schedule and the city will have a teachers' strike for the second successive year. Last year the three-week holdout had been for more money but it's a different story this year. The main issue is whether 10 teachers who were dismissed from the controversial Ocean Hill-Brownsville school District in Brooklyn will be reinstated.

Eight Teens Die in Collision
JAMESTOWN, N.D. — Eight North Dakota teen-agers were killed in a two-car collision near here Sunday. One 16-year-old girl survived the collision. The impact tore the engines from both cars.

CHICAGO BOYCOTT
SAN FRANCISCO — In an unprecedented move, the American Psychological Association Sunday canceled its scheduled 1969 convention, which attracts 14,000 free spenders, in Chicago in protest of its alleged police brutality. The move meant an estimated loss in tourist revenues to Chicago of $5 million. The association said it would seek to hold its annual meeting in Montreal, New York, Philadelphia or Washington — if facilities are available. The association's president-elect said "the indignation of our membership over last week's events is so strong I doubt we could attract many to Chicago."

DIZZIE BLONDES
Chicago police continued to draw both brickbats and bouquets Sunday over their handling of antiwar demonstrators during the Democratic National Convention. Three teen-age girls appeared at the East Chicago Avenue Police District with a two-foot-in-diameter chocolate cake. The three, Doris Curtis, and Conni Gorecki, both 18, and Linda Doeppel, 19, said the cake was their way of saying thanks for considerate treatment from police when they were arrested during near North Side disturbances Tuesday night. The cake was inscribed in icing with this message: "Thanks, and good luck to the sweet cops from the 18th District from 3 dizzle blondes, Conni, Doris and Linda."

The police were grateful, but pointed out they aren't allowed to accept gratuities. They turned it over to St. Vincent's Orphanage.

NO TRUTH
An Indiana educator said Sunday in Berlin he and 18 other Americans were ordered to leave the Soviet Union because he told Russian students the truth about the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Dr. Thomas Pappas said visas granted the Russian study seminar from Anderson College, near Indianapolis, were canceled on the grounds he lied about the Czech situation.

NO CANDIDATE
Mrs. Coretta King, widow of Martin Luther King Jr., Sunday rejected a proposal that she run as a vice presidential candidate on a ticket with Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn.

THE PRESIDENT

President Johnson spoke to parishioners lined up for communion at a Roman Catholic service Sunday and later took communion himself with Mrs. Johnson and daughter Lynda at an Episcopal church.

At St. Francis Xavier Catholic church in Stonewall, Tex., many of those filing down the aisle to take the Holy Eucharist, from the priest paused en route to speak or shake hands with Johnson.

The Rev. Wunibald Schneider prayed for "unity in this country and peace in Vietnam." It was the only part of the service that could be considered primarily for Johnson's ears.

At St. Barnabas Episcopal church in Fredericksburg, the Rev. William Campbell played for "all those behind the Iron Curtain and especially those in Czechoslovakia." Again, it was the only sentence possibly meant principally for Johnson.

RUSS HELP

A Soviet freighter made a 24-hour detour to avoid dropping off five castaway Israeli sailors in a hostile Arab port.

The five, who returned to Israel Sunday, said they were sailing a yacht off Turkey Friday when "a huge fish, apparently a whale," shattered their vessel with its tail.

Raf Lirav, 28, skipper of the yacht, inflated a rubber dinghy, and the five, including one woman, floated for 12 hours before being picked up by the 900-ton Soviet freighter Kremet.

Lirav said the captain informed him he was sailing to Latakia, in Syria, whereupon the five asked to be let off the ship with their dinghy. The Russian captain then ordered the ship to sail to Limassol, in Cyprus, causing a 24-hour delay in its schedule.

ONLY ROAD

Capt. Marien Ngouabi, who has emerged as the Congo Republic's dominant political figure, said Sunday his country would retain "national socialism" but would work with other ideologies.

He was interviewed over Radio Brazzaville, which also broadcast a thinly veiled denunciation of President Alphonse Massamba-Débat, Ngouabi, who emerged as commander in chief of the army after a government shakeup Aug. 3-4, said: "For underdeveloped countries like ours, socialism is the only road for the well-being of all."

NOT CHICAGO

Frank Connizzo, marshal of Chapman, Kan., got a report that about 30 teenagers were tearing up a cafe. Rushing to the cafe, the marshal was greeted by a chorus of "Happy birthday, Frank," from the teenagers and was given a birthday cake. "This sure beats being a cop in Chicago," said Connizzo.

HISTORIAN

Dr. George Peabody Gooch one of Britain's most distinguished historians, died at his home Saturday night in Chalfont St. Peter, England. He was 94. Dr. Gooch was a noted scholar and writer and historian on European diplomacy.

THE END

It used to be Stephanie Zyzda. Before that it was Zyzzy Zyzzyxxy. Now it's Zeke Zyzzypt.

Mr. Zyzpt parlayed three Zs at the start of his name to become the last name in the 1,722-page Chicago telephone directory published recently. Zyzpt nosed out Miss Zyzda, who had held the title since the departure of the legendary Zyzzy Zyzzyxxy several years ago.

ACTOR'S SON

Sean Flynn, son of the late actor Errol Flynn, was wounded in the chest and leg Saturday while filming a combat assault 20 miles southeast of Chu Lai in South Vietnam.

Flynn, 27, who lives in Paris, was hit by grenade shrapnel as Montgnard soldiers and U.S. advisers recaptured a strategic hill from North Vietnamese soldiers.

Flynn, a stringer cameraman for CBS, was treated at the nearby U.S. Special Forces camp, in Ha Thanh, and released. It was the second time Flynn had been wounded during his 20 months of covering the Vietnam war as a freelance correspondent. He was struck by shrapnel in February, 1966, while on an operation with the 1st Infantry Division near Lai Khe north of Saigon.

IKE READING, SITTING UP

Former President Eisenhower rested comfortably Sunday and his doctors were satisfied with his remarkable progress toward recovery from a seventh heart attack.

The 77-year-old general read snatches from a Western novel, listened to light background music and visited with his wife, Mamie. Doctors said he was responding well to extended periods in a semisitting position.

Hospital officials refused to disclose whether Eisenhower was still suffering from heart irritability, a condition in which the pulse rate climbs from a normal 70 or 80 beats per minute to as many as 250.

Heavy Surf Heads for Southland

46th Streets that had been partially undermined by wave action.

Officials reported that patios of two Newport shoreline homes collapsed last week and worse damage if Liza-spawned block-buster waves strike the area.

The 22-foot inboard boat "Fiesta" went aground on rocks off White Point, near Cabrillo Beach, Sunday afternoon, but all five persons aboard reached shore unharmed.

Cabrillo lifeguards said the boat's owners, Richard Washburn, of Arcadia, radioed the U.S. Coast Guard that his craft was drifting toward the rock pile.

But by the time a rescue boat had arrived, the skipper, his wife and three guests had left the craft safely.

COAST GUARD spokesmen, who said they had received no new word from the Weather Bureau as to a change in the high-wave predictions, reported a number of minor boating mishaps along Southland beaches, but said no one was injured.

Long Beach lifeguards, who reported making 12 rescues in 68-degree water covered by air reaching a high of 80 degrees, were on the lookout for roughening surf.

So were lifeguards at Seal, Cabrillo, Huntington, Huntington State Park and Newport beaches, all of whom reported increasingly big breakers.

Police Net Jails 19 as Bookies

Police agencies from Compton to Burbank arrested 19 persons Sunday in the roundup of an alleged $1 million-per-week bookmaking ring.

Officers of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, Los Angeles Police Department and the police departments of Alhambra, Monterey Park, Pasadena, South Gate and Burbank snapped up suspects in the first major action of a new task force composed of veteran vice squad officers.

Suspects from the Compton area were Frank Williamson, 37, of 2098 Oris St. and Jesse Johnson Jr., 44, of 1608 N. Grape Ave. Both were listed as agents of the ring.

Another alleged agent, John Buford, 61, of 2401 1/2 Hope St., Walnut Park, was booked by South Gate police officers.

Police identified Philip Alaimo, 54, of Burbank and Anthony Caliva, 43, of Alhambra as the alleged "kingpins" of the betting syndicate.

REACTION

I am surprised and alarmed at the Sound Off item about alcoholics printed on Aug. 28. I am surprised your newspaper would deem it advisable to print misinformation and am alarmed your readers will be led back into 19th-century thinking that the disease of alcoholism is a moral problem. An alcoholic has an obsession of the mind coupled with an allergy of the body, which has been recognized by the AMA and World Health Organization as a disease. The only way in which the active alcoholic can be helped is through the understanding of people, not by telling him he must "hang his head in shame." Two local sources for help for the alcoholic are Alcoholics Anonymous and the Long Beach Health Department's Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. We who work in the field of alcoholism have no illusions about coddling the sick alcoholic, but we feel the greatest hindrance to returning the sick person to a useful life is the public's ignorance about the disease of alcoholism. # Fleeing Youth Shot by Officer

An 18-year-old San Fernando youth was shot and wounded by a police officer Sunday after he allegedly fled from the officer and failed to heed his command to halt.

Police said Stanley Windford was in satisfactory condition at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center with a bullet wound in the shoulder.

Police officer David Horne said he saw Windford and William Warnock, 20, in a service station. Horne said they attempted to flee when they saw him.

Horne said he ordered them to halt but Windford continued running. After firing one warning shot, Horne said, he then fired and hit Windford. Both Windford and Warnock were booked on suspicion of burglary.

Faces Murder Rap

VAN NUYS (AP) — Jerry Burke, 25, has been booked on suspicion of murdering 22-year-old Danny Konoff, identified by police as a semi-professional boxer.

Officers said Konoff broke a window and tried to force his way into Burke's Van Nuys home after being refused admittance Sunday. Konoff was shot to death.

M.I.T. Widens Car Race Advantage

The crew of Caltech's "Voltswagen" got a shock Sunday when they pulled into East St. Louis, Ill., and discovered their M.I.T. competitors in the great electric car race had gained an 825-mile lead.

Caltech's entry faces a 1,350-mile journey to the M.I.T. campus at Cambridge, Mass.

At its current average speed of 18 mph, their converted Microbus is not expected to reach Cambridge until Tuesday night or Wednesday.

M.I.T.'s electric powered Corvair has reached Flagstaff, Ariz., averaging 21.1 mph on the cross-country race.

At that pace, the M.I.T. entry could reach the Caltech campus in Pasadena around 2:30 p.m. today.

When the Caltech team was told their opponents were within 525 miles of their goal, the only comment was: "Charge!"

Convention Hall Groundbreaking

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Sam Yorty will shovel the first clod of dirt Wednesday on the site of a $38.5-million Los Angeles Convention Hall and Exhibition Center, years in the planning.

"We are booking conventions into the center for its opening year," says Yorty.

The center, 500,000 feet square, is scheduled for completion in late 1970 or early 1971. It will have 18 meeting rooms, an auditorium seating 5,000, parking for 4,000 cars and restaurants.

"Most of them, after they take the first bite, find they don't like the taste and spit it out."

That's the opinion after years of research of Dr. Shelton Applegate, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

In an interview Sunday he said he thinks sharks bite a man in belief he is some weird kind of seal or other fish floundering in the water.

Cliff Fall Ends Suicide Threat

A 20-year-old Hawthorne woman fell down a 200-foot cliff in Palos Verdes Sunday afternoon while threatening to kill herself because her brother had been stabbed to death at a party early that morning.

"He's dead and it's all my fault," Dianne Marie Holt shouted to police officers trying to convince her not jump from a cliff in the 1600 block of Paseo Del Mar.

"I'm going to jump, but I'm chicken," she shouted just as she lost her balance and slid down the cliff.

A Los Angeles County Fire Department helicopter brought Miss Holt back to the top of the cliff and she was taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance where she was treated and released.

Early Sunday morning during a party at 14808 Yukon Ave., Hawthorne, Miss Holt had become involved in an argument with Donald Joseph Gonzales, 22, of 6411 Marconi St., Huntington Park.

Her two stepbrothers, Dennis A. Davis, 18, and John M. Sidello, 18, both of Hawthorne, tried to intervene and a melee developed.

During the fight Davis was stabbed in the chest with a six-inch butcher knife and Sidello was slashed twice. Davis staggered to the patio of the apartment and died. Hawthorne police reported. Gonzales was booked on suspicion of murder at the Hawthorne Police Station.

2 Brothers Drown in Swim Pool

Two brothers visiting Southern California from San Francisco drowned during a party at a home in Lennox.

The bodies of Mathew Muldrew, 21, and his brother, Steven, 19, were found at the bottom of a swimming pool Saturday after guests noticed the brothers missing and went to look for them.

Guests at the party said the affair had begun around the swimming pool of the home, but later moved inside.

Both were taken to Morningside Hospital where they were pronounced dead on arrival.

Second Earthquake Hits Ravaged Iran

its first notification of the disaster on Iranian territory.

The quake rocked a 60,000-square-mile area with the epicenter near Khaf, about 175 miles south of Meshed. Meshed, the largest city in Eastern Iran, is about 450 miles east of Tehran.

THE IRANIAN Air Force set up a makeshift airlift to the devastated region, flying in 724 doctors and medical assistants and hundreds of Sixth Army troops and other soldiers. The soldiers were formed into teams, some to dig for victims, some to bury the dead, and others to dispose of carcasses of dead animals.

Medical authorities feared an outbreak of typhoid because of the lack of water supplies when the quake shattered conduits leading into the desert area.

They also warned that hundreds of survivors might suffer or die from the cold despite tents brought in by the air force.

There were fears of famine too, because of the disruption of normal food supply channels and the destruction wrought in the wheat and barley fields, apple and pear orchards and vineyards.

Relief officials said the first quake took a heavy toll of lives because it came at the hour when most of the region's peasants were taking after-lunch rests in their homes.

OFFICIALS said the mud brick homes, with clay tile roofs often loaded with heavy stones and supported by slender wooden uprights, collapsed under the force of the shock, which registered 7.8 on the open-end Richter scale.

The hardest hit towns included Kakhak, where at least 1,500 were injured; Dzshoyaz with more than 2,000 dead and 1,500 injured; Minbad with more than 1,200 dead and 240 injured; and Kalej more than 700 dead and 115 injured, relief officials reported.

MENFI, Sicily (AP) — Three light earth tremors jarred this village early Sunday and sent hundreds fleeing into the countryside. They joined 2,000 Sicilians who have been living in tents on the outskirts of Menfi since their homes were destroyed by tremors in January. The walls of a church damaged by the January tremors collapsed but police said there were no casualties or other damage reported.

Two Jailed in Protest

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (UPI) — Two persons were arrested Sunday when police broke up a march by Negroes protesting the closing of a dance.

Officers said the marchers threw rocks and bottles, and some looting was reported. One policeman was injured.

Panda Feeling Sexy, Mating Outlook Rosy

LONDON (AP) — Chi-Chi was in an irascible mood Sunday and that sent zoologists plotting the panda romance of the century into ecstasy. For they said this means she's feeling sexy.

An-An, her lover from Moscow here for their second go at trying to become parents, was in good shape, too.

"Everything is going absolutely superbly," said a spokesman at the London Zoo. "We are very pleased with the way An-An is settling down."

Chi-Chi and An-An are 11 years old. That's middle age for pandas. And if they hope to have a family—they had better start warming up now.

$17,000 Damage in School Fire

Fire broke out Sunday in a large music room at the Russell Street School, 1200 Firestone Blvd., Los Angeles and caused $17,000 damage as it spread to the school auditorium and a hallway.

Five units of the Los Angeles County Fire Department brought the blaze under control about 1 p.m. and had it doused by 3 p.m.

Hecklers Greet HHH

"the search for peace at home and abroad."

AT A WELCOME home ceremony in the small lakeside village where Humphrey lives, the vice president talked about the promise of the future and bitterly attacked extremist militants who provoke violence in the streets.

Standing on a bunting-draped platform in front of the village hall, Humphrey told a crowd of friends and neighbors that "Just as we cannot condone violence at home we cannot condone aggression overseas."

The vice president conceded that in some places, like Czechoslovakia, the United States can do little more than condemn aggression, but he added that it appeared in nations with which the U.S. has treaties "we must resist aggression."

The crowd was estimated at about 600, although the population of Waverly itself is only 587. The vice president arrived at the brief ceremony about one half hour late after giving visiting reporters a tour of his lakeside property.

The two-block motorcade included an American Legion honor guard, Boy Scouts, the "Maple Leaf" marching band and an open convertible for Humphrey, Mrs. Muriel Humphrey and their son Douglas, 20.

FOR THE first time since Humphrey began his quest for the presidency he found no hecklers and no antiwar demonstrators. Many in the crowd obviously knew Humphrey more as a neighbor than as the Democratic presidential candidate.

Visibly relaxed after a weekend free of politics, Humphrey started with bantering remarks, but quickly moved into a cut-down version of his acceptance speech.

He rejected, as he often has, the politics of despair and said, "I see the time ahead filled with hope and filled with promise but I am totally aware of the pitfalls in the road ahead. He said the nation must have thousands of new and better jobs and more and better schools "because there isn't any other way — you have to sink or swim."

He called for a "new day," which increasingly appears to be the slogan of his campaign, and said it

NEW YORK (AP) — The night he was nominated for president, Hubert H. Humphrey narrowly missed being hit by a half-pound ash-tray that came hurtling down from a Chicago hotel window. Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., the parliamentarian at the Democratic National Convention, told of the incident Sunday in a television interview.

He said that this was the time for the young to have their day; that it was a challenge to the old generation; and the promise of the "light of day" which Negroes in the ghettos have never seen.

HUMPHREY told the crowd, not a single problem has ever been settled by violence, and warned that the way for the "militant strident persons" is the road to destruction, "the road to disaster."

"There is nothing as old and reactionary as violence and we can not tolerate those conditions."

At the same time Humphrey said the nation must

Rescuers End Hunt of Explosion Ruins

GARY, Ind. — Fire department rescue workers discontinued their search Sunday for more victims possibly buried under the charred debris of an apartment building after 13 persons, nine of them children, were killed Saturday after an explosion and fire.

Jointly Endorse Paris Bid, HHH Asks Nixon

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Vice President Humphrey declared Sunday that both political parties should have their presidential candidates — himself and Richard Nixon — serve notice on North Vietnam that "we support the efforts of our negotiators" in the Paris talks on Vietnam. Humphrey declared in a statement issued here that Hanoi should understand that it is not in its interest to continue the killing in South Vietnam in the hope that the political campaign in the U.S. will somehow lead "to a weakening of American determination either on the battlefield or at the negotiating table."

"North Vietnam must understand that the political campaign in the United States will not result in our granting to North Vietnam concessions which it cannot obtain through the legitimate processes of negotiation now underway in Paris," said Humphrey.

The vice president said both parties gave no reason in their platforms for North Vietnam to obtain advantage in further delay in negotiations.

Negro, White Gun Battle Kills 2; 13 Held for Murder

BEREA, Ky. (UPI) — Thirteen persons were charged with murder Sunday night following a gun battle between Negroes and members of a white supremacy group, which left two dead and several others injured.

Police confiscated a large hoard of weapons from both sides during a shakedown which followed the incident. Mayor C. C. Hensley asked townspeople to remain off the street after dark.

The shooting broke out at the end of a meeting of the National States Rights Party, a white supremacist group, in an abandoned used car lot just outside city limits.

Authorities said three carloads of Negroes drove by the lot and fired several shots into the crowd of about 20 men. The whites then raced to their cars and took up the chase. Police said about 50 shots were fired.

State police at the nearby Richmond barracks were called in to help control the situation.

Killed in the fracas were George Boggs, 32, a Negro from Berea, and Elvia Rucker, 28, a white man from Lexington.

Seven white men were charged with the murder of Boggs and six Negroes with the murder of Rucker.

Charged with the Boggs murder were Connie Lynch, Peter Xavier, Dudley Hughes, Jerry Pope, R. D. Eldridge, Charles Eldridge and Kenneth H. Hale. Charged with the Rucker murder were Robert Herd, Doug Moran, Valfred Rice, George W. White, Arthur Boggs and William Bernard.

Police did not release hometowns of the accused. They were to be arraigned before a Madison County judge.

Treated for wounds and released from Patty A. Clay Hospital in Richmond were Kenneth W. Hale, 18, and Dudley Hughes, 41, both of Dayton, Ohio. Three other persons were reportedly hit by stray shotgun blasts.

Another man, Robert E. Oliver, 56, of Richmond, was struck by a state police car en route to the disturance. He was listed in satisfactory condition at University of Kentucky Hospital in Lexington.

Police Chief Donald Tudor called out the entire force in the small community of 4,300 population, in eastern Kentucky.

According to state police, the white supremacist group held a meeting Saturday night in Berea, preceding the Sunday event.

State Police Detective Sgt. Louis Babb and other personnel from the Richmond barracks were continuing the investigation and indicated more arrests may be made.

Following the shootings, police stopped passing motorists to search for weapons.

3 Police Injured in Negro Row

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Three policemen were wounded and 10 arrested Saturday night and early Sunday when Negroes battled police here.

It was the second successive night of violence in St. Paul. Three fire bombings were reported and rocks were hurled by a crowd of nearly 300 Negro youths.

When police chased a man down an alley, the man whirled and opened fire with a shotgun, wounding three officers. Ten persons were arrested most on charges of carrying concealed weapons.

Cyclist Killed

COURTLAND (UPI) — Carl E. Lincecum, 31, Sacramento, was killed Sunday when he lost control of his motorcycle on California 160 and struck a tree about 2 miles south of here.

Scheduled to join them are Dr. Ronald Krum, studying at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., and Terry Brown, a male nurse from Nashville, Tenn.

Romanian Leaders Fight Back

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—A.5
Long Beach, Calif., Mon., Sept. 2, 1968

BUCHAREST — Faced with rumors of an impending invasion, Romania's Communist leaders fought back Sunday with more arguments for national independence and against armed intervention.

Although invasion fears have been heightened by President Johnson's weekend reference to the rumors, there was no evidence of unusual military activity in Romanian border areas and there was no comment from Romanian official sources.

But the war of words continued. President Nicolae Ceausescu, head of state and of the Romanian Communist party, declared in a speech published Sunday morning in the party paper Scinteia:

"We have never thought that force could ever be used among Communists, among the Socialist countries, to impose a certain point of view."

CEAUSescu recalled the expression of Louis XIV, "L'etat c'est moi" — "I am the state."

There are some theoreticians," he said, "who take among themselves the right of giving definite Judgments upon the principle, 'Le Marxisme c'est moi.'

"No, nobody can affirm that, 'I am Marxism.' Marxism-Leninism is nobody's property, it is a scientific principle."

Ion Gheorghe Maurer, who, as chairman of the council of ministers, is head of government, also was quoted in Scinteia as having said:

"We are building socialism in such a way that it could never be said that we have deviated from it. We are building it by proceeding from the country's realities, guiding ourselves upon the fundamental truths of Marx's, in the way and with the methods that best suit the Romanian people."

THE ROMANIAN people cannot conceive and would not accept to live otherwise than free, sovereign and masters of their destiny."

A spot check this morning among a few of the 366 churches open in Bucharest, mainly Greek Orthodox, revealed fair-sized crowds of both young and old. Some young men wore small crosses around their necks.

Conspicuous this weekend was the return to Bucharest of many of the correspondents who had left before President Johnson's speech.

Some western correspondents drove over the weekend to the Danube River, 40 miles south of Bucharest, and crossed into Bulgaria with little difficulty over the mile-and-a-quarter Friendship Bridge.

Other correspondents drove to the Soviet border 145 miles northeast near the Danube River port of Galati, and still others toured the industrial heartland of the Ploesti oil fields and the tractor and truck plants of Brasov.

IN NO area did correspondents report any signs of unusual military activity. In Bucharest, however, it was said that newly-reactivated militia units were undergoing Sunday training.

Scinteia, also reported dozens of other speeches and printed seven pictures of Ceausescu being greeted with smiles and applause as he toured the Hungarian-speaking Transylvania area.

POPE SENDS FUNDS TO CZECHS

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (UPI) — The Vatican disclosed Sunday that Pope Paul VI has given "vast" sums of money from his personal funds to help Czechoslovak refugees.

Reporting the papal gifts, the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, also said the Pope has asked Caritas, the international Roman Catholic charity, to help persons dissemined the invasion as "a placed by the Soviet-bloc invasion."

lude blow to international order."

In a statement to pilgrims at his summer residence, the Pope said the presence of Russian and other Warsaw Pact troops in Czechoslovakia was "an imposition of a foreign will on a people's civic life, a grave offense to freedom and national dignity and a threat to the security of other nations."

Dubcek said the first stage of withdrawal had started with troops leaving towns and localities and going into special military areas "wherever the consolidation of the situation is guaranteed by the Czechoslovak authorities and where the protection of the Socialist system is assured."

The new Presidium included Dubcek, nine of his liberal followers, two conservatives, three neutrals and six Communists whose political tendencies were not immediately known. President Ludvik Svoboda was among the new members.

Others named to the committee included Vasil Bilak, a hardliner considered to be Dubcek's archrival. He was named by clandestine broadcasts as a "collaborator" with the Soviets and was reported ousted as first secretary of the Slovak party last week.

In addition, the committee elected three alternate Presidium members, all of whom are known hardliners.

"It will be necessary to take certain measures regarding the composition of the party Central Committee and its organs," Radio Prague said.

It announced indefinite postponement of a scheduled party congress pending implementation of the Moscow agreement for gradual withdrawal of the Warsaw Pact troops as the situation in Czechoslovakia "normalized."

The party congress had been scheduled to begin Sept. 9.

"In the area of press, radio and television, there will have to be re-established temporary censorship which will protect the basic interests of the state in the questions of defense and security," the broadcast said.

In this connection, the broadcast referred to the resignation Saturday night of Gen. Josef Pavel, the interior minister. It said the committee mentioned a need to "strengthen the structure" of the ministry which controls the secret police.

Pavel, a staunch liberal, was replaced by Jan Pejar, a moderate believed to be more acceptable to Moscow as chief of national security.

The communique sought to assure the people of this occupied nation that the Soviets had promised to make good on their pledge for the withdrawal of forces.

"The Soviets in return will faithfully keep to their pledges made at the Moscow negotiations, namely the gradual withdrawal of troops, no intervention by the armed forces in the internal affairs of our nation, and compensation for damage due to the occupation and compensation for the Czechoslovak economy," the broadcast said.

Wallace Hints He'd Quit Viet

Would Pull Out
If Military Win,
Negotiators Fail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George C. Wallace indicated Sunday that as president he would consider pulling out of Vietnam if negotiations proved fruitless and the Joint Chiefs of Staff concluded that a military victory was impossible.

However, the former Alabama governor and third-party presidential candidate made it clear that he favors a negotiated end to the war or a military victory if possible.

"I would like to see a negotiated peace that is honorable, that would not say the loss of life and health of so many thousands of Americans and others have been in vain," he said.

Speaking on the nationwide television interview program "Issues and Answers," Wallace continued: "But if we fail in the peace talks, we have failed diplomatically and politically. Then we cannot stay in Southeast Asia forever in the manner in which we are there now."

"If the war cannot be won militarily, then we will have to reappraise our position in Southeast Asia because we cannot stay there alone," he cautioned.

Wallace said, however, that to his knowledge the Joint Chiefs had never said a military victory is unlikely.

"If the Joint Chiefs of Staff think there could be a military victory, then we ought to have a military victory if we fail in Paris, and bring the servicemen home and then turn over to the South Vietnamese and help them be equipped militarily to handle the security of the country," he added.

Wallace also said he has decided against holding a national convention for his newly formed American Independent Party, and that he would hold a rally next month unless he is required by law to hold a convention to remain on the ballot of any state.

"IT SEEMS when you hold a national convention today in the climate that has been created in our country that I like to say, by both national parties knowing to this group of anarchists in the last several years, it takes an armed fortress."

"It takes almost the whole United States armed forces to defend delegates to the convention," he said.

Wallace said he would select his vice presidential running mate "in the next few days," adding: "It is going to be somebody in the United States."

Demos Cut Blast at TV Violence

Plank Switch
Altered to Deplore
General Media
By JACK GOULD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The Platform Committee of the Democratic National Committee dropped, at the last minute, a plank specifically condemning the television medium for use of violence in entertainment and urging the Federal Communications Commission to apply its powers to revoke or renew a broadcaster's license.

The plank, introduced by Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, had been approved by a vote of 10-7 of the full Platform Committee and was released to the press on Monday night of last week in Chicago. But when the formal printed version of the platform was released a day later, Pell's proposal had been altered to deplore "the frequent exploitation of violence in entertainment in all media."

Direct criticism of both television and the FCC was omitted and none of the three networks alluded to the air to the change.

Dilution of the plank in order to embrace all media without reference to the licensing powers of the FCC followed hurried objections by many elements of the broadcasting industry and some members of the Platform Committee, including Rep. Hale Boggs, of Louisiana, chairman of the group.

As soon as he learned of the content of Pell's original proposal, Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, sent a teletype message to the hundreds of radio and TV stations affiliated with CBS.

His message did not suggest a course of action, but no issue is more sensitive or volatile in broadcasting than a threat of possible revocation of a license. Stanton suggested that his position was that all available research had failed to establish a direct causal relationship between violence and the media, and that to single out TV against motion pictures or the covers of paperback books was not warranted.

GLENCHED FIST Negro Soldiers Stand Together

Combined News Services

Forty-one Negro soldiers — 25 of them Vietnam combat veterans — have brought a new salute to Fort Hood, an enormous Army installation in central Texas.

A raised clenched fist, symbolic of Black Power, is used in greeting among sympathizers with the 41 — not blatantly, but stoically in barracks, dusty garrison streets, on the golf course.

At Fort Hood, the fist symbolizes not an increase in black militancy, but rising sympathy for the 41.

The 41 stood their ground when they thought they would be ordered to go to Chicago for riot duty at the Democratic National Convention.

They refused to go.

They now are being held on charges of disobeying an order to disperse. The men will be tried in the Army's special court martial — less weighty than a general court martial, but more serious than a summary court martial.

The GIs refused to go to Chicago, they said, because they felt they would have to fight other Negroes. As it turned out, regular Army troops which did go to the convention city were not used.

The resistance involved about 60 Negro troops who staged a sit-in Aug. 23.

Lt. Col. E. W. Kulo, the provost marshal, ordered the men to disperse. At daybreak, most of the group was arrested, taken to the post stockade, and written up on charges.

Later, the men were released in custody of the company commanders of the five units to which they are assigned.

Before the group was arrested, however, several battalion commanders talked to the gathering. When they had no influence, Major Gen. John K. Boles Jr., First Armored Division commander, talked to them.

The Army is reluctant to talk about the demonstration. Most Army authorities explain their refusal to discuss the matter by declaring to do so might bring allegations of prejudice when court martials begin.

When those actions do begin, the soldiers will be defended by lawyers assigned by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Legal Defense and Educational Fund. They may also have the help of the American Civil Liberties Union.

While they wait, the soldiers talk about the demonstration. The resistance was spontaneous, they said, and grew after "the word got out" they they would be sent to Chicago.

One soldier, newly returned from Vietnam, said, "We know you can't buck the Army."

But, he added, the resistance move was the only way "we had to tell people how we felt about it."

The Army was wrong, he said. "They should have known we weren't going to fight our own people."

Of the GIs cited for court martial, most said there was no influence on their action from off-post sources and only a few expressed anti-white feelings.

Most said, too, that there was no influence brought on them by the Black Power movement or another movement which seeks to unify the Army.

Catholics Reject Pill Ban in Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Most American Roman Catholics, particularly those in their 20's, oppose Pope Paul's recent encyclical banning artificial birth control methods, the Gallup Poll reported Sunday.

The poll said that of every 100 Catholics who are aware of the encyclical, 54 say they are opposed, 28 are in favor, and 18 expressed no opinion.

Even among devout Catholics — defined as those who attend Mass once a week or more — criticism is nearly as strong, the poll said.

Among Catholics in their 20's, almost 8 in 10 disagree with the Pope's position.

Gallup also noted that more than 60 per cent of Protestants of all ages are critical of the encyclical. Catholics gave three main reasons for their opposition: The world is becoming overpopulated; Catholics should be allowed to follow their conscience in family planning; and families should rear only those children they can properly care for.

Russ Dashed World Peace, Survey Bares

Combined News Services

The Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia has dashed the hopes of a majority of Americans that an agreement for world peace can be worked out with Russia, according to the Harris Survey Sunday.

The survey, copyrighted by the Washington Post, showed that sentiment on the possibility of a Soviet-U.S. long-term peace agreement switched from 5-to-3 optimistic to 5-to-3 pessimistic after the invasion.

But the vast majority — 88 to 5 per cent — still believe "that in the Atomic Age we still have to try to work out a peace with Russia."

By 63 to 20 per cent, those polled felt that "the cold war is on all over again with the Czech invasion of Russia."

Although the invasion was a result of ideological and pragmatic differences between the Russians and the Czechs, the American public believes by 59 to 27 per cent that "the Czech invasion proves all Communist countries are alike, and cannot be trusted."

And by 65 to 19 per cent, the Harris Survey showed Americans agree the U.S. "should strengthen its defenses and alliances, such as NATO, to be prepared to resist aggression anywhere in the world."

But, the survey showed, although Americans were outraged by the invasion, "they realize they live in a world with no simple solutions."

The public felt the U.S. should "demand that the Russians get out of Czechoslovakia" by only a slim 40 to 38 per cent.

Implicit in this response, according to the Harris

Survey, is that although most Americans condemn the invasion, they have reservations about risking a nuclear war.

The poll also showed that voters who thought a U.S.-Soviet detente was possible favored Hubert Humphrey over Richard Nixon, 39 to 36 per cent.

New Nixon Debuts at Home

By BILL STALL

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon makes a new debut this week as a campaigner for political office in California, the state where his political fortunes have reached extreme peaks and depths over the years.

The last time Nixon campaigned for himself in his native state, he suffered a stinging 388,000-vote defeat for governor at the hands of Democrat Edmund G. Brown on Nov. 6, 1962.

That campaign ended with Nixon's bitter morning-after exchange with reporters when he promised the newsmen, "You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer, because, gentlemen, this is my last press conference."

SIX MONTHS later Nixon announced he was moving to New York. Nixon returns this week to a different California, where Republican leaders brim with confidence that the former congressman, senator and vice president will easily carry the state in his new quest for the presidency over Democratic Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The Republicans are in. The Democrats are out. Republicans are united following the 1966 GOP California sweep and Democrats are doing the fighting among themselves, split in particular over the administration's conduct of the war in Vietnam.

Friday, Nixon is scheduled to ride in a motorcade down San Francisco's Montgomery Street in his first 1968 campaign appearance in his native state. A rousing welcome is forecast.

Republican state chairman James W. Halley said in an interview, "Interest in his coming is great. He's in a strong position here."

"NIXON IS popular today because he presents an opportunity for new, sound management... People very strongly want a change. They want to get away from the policies and failures of the last four years. Nixon has articulated very well."

Halley said people want a man who "can run the shop."

Halley declined to discuss the difference between 1968 and 1962, when Nixon bowed out of state politics with his acrimonious statements. Victorious Gov. Brown watched them on television and forecast, "Nixon is going to regret all his life that he made that speech."

But another top California Republican, who declined to be identified by name, said he doubts many Californians will remember the 1962 Nixon speech when they vote this fall.

"I THINK that his courage in continuing to pursue an able political course is the main thing that stands out in people's minds," this Republican said. His record since 1962 as a party spokesman and tireless campaigner for other Republicans — "all of this shows a steadiness and courage," he added.

GOP politicians in the state, some of whom fought with Nixon when he was a California party leader, are solidly behind Nixon now, the source said.

SAYS LBJ HURT LABOR

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon charged today that the Johnson Administration "has broken faith with the American workingman," by generating inflation and thus decreasing the purchasing power of the dollar.

In a Labor Day message released to the press here, the Republican candidate for president declared:

"In the last two years the average American worker has been on a government-operated treadmill. New taxes and rising prices have more than wiped out all the pay raises he has won since 1965."

"The new taxes on income, requested publicly by this administration, and the hidden tax of inflation, imposed clandestinely by this Administration, have together left the purchasing power of the American worker below what it was in December of 1965."

Nixon said the problem has recently become more acute. "In this year, the 10 per cent surtax was added on all incomes and prices are now rising at more than 4 per cent annually," he said. "The hardships that these prices work on the poor and the pensioners within the society will weigh heavily on the final balance sheet against this Administration."

He concluded by declaring that "the men of politics would better serve the ends of honest labor if they simply abjured forever the politics of inflation — the modern curse of the working man."

RED PARTY CANDIDATE ASKS REPORT

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The American Communist Party candidate for the U.S. presidency is demanding that she be given all government briefings accorded other candidates, noting that such briefings have been given to George Wallace of Alabama, prospective American Independent Party candidate, and Lester Maddox of Georgia, briefly a Democratic contestant.

Mrs. Charlene Mitchell, the Communist, is also alleging that the federal government has refused to provide her with Secret Service protection. She quoted a statement by John W. Warner, assistant to the service's director, that guards go only to persons "designated as major candidates" by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Mrs. Mitchell was speaking during the second day of a National Communist Conference of 100 leaders in New York. The American Communist Party is seeking to reconcile views on the Soviet bloc occupation of Czechoslovakia. Gus Hall, the party's general secretary, has denounced critics of the occupation as those wishing to "climb on the anti-Soviet bandwagon."

Nixon Campaign Strategy Designed to Attract Disgruntled Democrats

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon can be expected to conduct a campaign for the presidency that just might attract significant numbers of embittered and dispirited Democrats.

The GOP nominee's strategy has been in the developing stage for weeks, long before the Democratic party was almost split asunder in Chicago. But Nixon now thinks a better chance of capturing Democratic and independent voters and he is likely to pay special attention to them.

From comments by Nixon, from signs appearing in his preliminary campaigning, from private conversations with Nixon aides, it has become apparent that the old Nixon image of a slashing, aggressive campaigner will be replaced by a statesmanlike figure who rather than attacking others, stresses what he can do for the country. A recent incident in Harrisburg, Pa., illustrates the point.

Nixon was addressing a noisy, partisan rally on the Capitol steps. Also in the crowd were about a dozen sign-carrying supporters of Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn. Not once during Nixon's 10-minute address did the outsiders interrupt the Republican candidate.

NIXON TOUCHED on the politically volatile issue of law and order. But a call for increased respect of laws was immediately followed up by a reminder that America must have laws which deserve respect.

Turning to Vietnam, the crucial issue to the McCarthy doves, Nixon promised a foreign policy that "will end the war in Vietnam and avoid future Vietnams."

McCarthy signs bobbed up and down with the cheers of the crowd.

Admittedly, doves were not happy when the day before Nixon backed President Johnson's refusal to order a total bombing halt of North Vietnam. But under the debate's moratorium he imposed upon himself, that is virtually the only specific he will discuss during the Paris peace talks.

IN TRIAL campaign runs around the country since the Republican convention nominated him on Aug. 7, Nixon has made it clear he is keenly aware of the elements that trouble Americans today.

But unlike third-party candidate George Wallace, Nixon has not been busy spreading blame on individuals. (An associate has said Nixon will deal "in issues, not personalities.") Instead, he has talked of a new day, one in which black and white will live together in harmony, where all Americans will have the opportunity to better their lot in life and one in which tranquility will prevail.

In a relaxed moment the day after the Republican convention ended, Nixon was asked in academic fashion about the prospects of demagoging the issue of "law and order."

HIS ANSWER was prompt. He shook his head.

"No, it can't be demagoguery," he answered. "You might win but you would have a country at war. You couldn't govern."

Add to Nixon's own approach the promised enthusiastic support of such Republican moderates as Sen. Jacob Javits, N.Y.; Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, N.Y.; New York City Mayor John Lindsay and Sen. Edward Brooke, Mass., and Nixon's standing among liberals may climb higher still.

Brooke, the Senate's only Negro, has already helped in another fashion. He has countered criticism of Maryland Gov. Spiro Agnew, Nixon's vice presidential running mate, among some black leaders by describing Agnew as a personal friend, who has been grossly misunderstood and who is actually a true "progressive."

McCarthyites May Sit Out '68 Election

NEW YORK (UPI) — Democratic senatorial candidate Paul O'Dwyer said Sunday he might vote for Hubert H. Humphrey for president but that otherwise he and thousands of youthful supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy would sit out the November election.

O'Dwyer said on television that his refusal to support Humphrey was forced on him by the party's intransigence on the Vietnam war.

The party's endorsement of a platform plank supporting President Johnson's Vietnam policy "ignored the wishes of 80 per cent of the 7 million voters throughout the primary states" who rejected both Johnson and Humphrey, O'Dwyer said.

O'Dwyer refused to concede even the slightest chance he would change his mind about supporting Humphrey before the election, but admitted he might go so far as to vote for Humphrey.

"Ask me that in about a month," O'Dwyer said.

HE RULED out any possibility of supporting Richard M. Nixon, the Republican nominee.

"I could not think of supporting a man or a ticket that was dictated to by Strom Thurmond," he said.

O'Dwyer, who was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, said the brutality of Chicago police was "appalling" and that Humphrey's failure to denounce it proved him to be "insensitive to the total concept of civil liberties."

Say McCarthy Tried to Withdraw Candidacy Because of 'Brutality'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy attempted to withdraw his name from nomination at the Democratic National Convention because of police brutality to protesters, according to the latest issue of Time magazine.

The magazine in its Sept. 6 issue says McCarthy watched the battles between demonstrators and police on Michigan Avenue from his hotel room on the 23rd floor of the Conrad Hilton. His daughter Mary pleaded, "Oh Dad, help them."

McCarthy went down to his staff headquarters on the 15th floor, where his doctor, William Davidson, had opened a makeshift hospital.

McCarthy comforted the injured, Time said, then returned to his hotel suite, telephoned his campaign manager and asked him to withdraw his name. But it was too late and the balloting already was in progress.

Time quoted McCarthy as explaining his attempt to withdraw as a move that might end the violence at the convention.

"I thought this might stabilize it," he said.

'Wounded' Demos to Win, Says Top Woman Strategist

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Democratic party's top woman strategist said Sunday "We were wounded" by the Yippie demonstrations and delegate clashes but predicted a win over the Republicans in November.

Gertrude Joseph, newly-elected vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee and director of women's activities, said in an interview it was a "terrible sight" to look out of her hotel window during the melee between the protesters and police. But she found some comfort that the "argument and clamor" during the Democratic convention was "an indication of strength."

"They believed their criticism would be heard and it was heard," she said. "You wouldn't have that in the Republican Party."

Antiwar Spokesmen Rip Humphrey Viet, Law-Order Stands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert H. Humphrey would have to "make clear he wants all foreign troops out of Vietnam" and the bombing of North Vietnam stopped to qualify for support from antiwar Democrats, one leading dissenter from party policy said Sunday.

Allard Lowenstein, a candidate for Congress in New York and chairman of the Committee for an Open Convention and the Conference of Confirmed Democrats, said the vice president should take three steps to court the favor of Democrats opposed to the war.

Humphrey, his party's nominee for president, has endorsed a Democratic party platform plank generally supporting the Johnson Administration's course of action in Vietnam. It was adopted at last week's convention in Chicago.

Lowenstein appeared with Marcus G. Raskin, the national chairman of a new political group, the New Party, on the CBS television program "Face the Nation."

Raskin said he still hopes that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, an unsuccessful contender for the Democratic nomination, would accept the leadership of the New Party.

In addition to the positions on Vietnam which Lowenstein suggested, he said he questions Humphrey's position on "law and order," an issue already developing into a major point for the 1968 campaign.

Lowenstein said the same basic questions also applied to Richard M. Nixon, the Republican presidential candidate, implying that the dissenters might vote GOP if Nixon were to take positions with which they could agree.

Raskin said the New Party has no candidate for president yet, but predicted that one would step forward soon.

He predicted, too, that the organization would be on the presidential ballot in at least 25 states. And he said McCarthy's name might be on the ballot in several states whether he wants it there or not because of rumors that presidential election decide whom they will support.

Raskin and Lowenstein agreed that some opponents of the war feel as though they will have no effective vote because no major candidate — Humphrey, Nixon or George C. Wallace — agrees with them on Vietnam policy.

LOWENSTEIN declined to join Raskin in an appeal to McCarthy to accept the New Party's banner, although Lowenstein supported the Minnesota senator for the Democratic nomination.

He declined, Lowenstein said, because "I can't tell him now what I could tell him then — that he could be elected."

McCarthy has said he will not lead a fourth-party movement but might join one if it had a worthwhile program and acceptable leadership.

Another unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination, Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, promised to support the party nominee. McGovern also campaigned as a peace candidate.

Raskin assailed the Democratic party, saying it was once based on "southern bosses" but is now based on the "military-industrial elite."

"The liberal reformers have been thrown out of the party," he said. Lowenstein immediately labeled that statement "nonsense."

Missile Launch Tests Readiness of AF Crews

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The Air Force launched a Minuteman II intercontinental ballistic missile without advance notice Sunday in a test of the operational readiness of combat crews and equipment.

The Minuteman was fired at 11 a.m. from the Vandenberg base. It had propellant sufficient only to sustain seven seconds of powered flight and the second and third stages were not fueled. The missile fell into the ocean on the Pacific test range.

It was the first time such a seven second missile had been fired from Vandenberg.

Muskie: Police 'Overreacted'

New York Times Service

PORTLAND, Me. — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine displayed a somewhat softer attitude than Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Sunday in reacting to the street disorders that shook the Democratic National Convention this week.

The party's vice-presidential nominee, in his first major appearance since becoming Humphrey's running mate, said he had an "impression" that the police "overreacted" in their suppression of youthful protesters Wednesday.

Humphrey said Saturday, "We ought to quit pretending that Mayor (Richard J.) Daley did something that was wrong" in taking a hard line toward demonstrators outside the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

However, in a talk Sunday in his hometown of Waverly, Minn., Humphrey denounced "militant, strident, violent" persons who take to the streets to settle their problems. Muskie, questioned on the National Broadcasting Company's "Meet the Press" program, said he didn't consider Humphrey's statement a "clear endorsement" of the police performance in Chicago.

He also said that there had been "troublemakers" bent on disrupting the city, and that Daley had no choice but "to organize to take care of the situation."

"I doubt that Daley would deliberately provoke trouble," he said of the Chicago mayor.

Later in the program, he said officials should be "firm" with protesters and that no city should "tolerate anarchy."

But he noted that "a lot of innocent people were hurt" when the Chicago police waded into crowds outside the convention headquarters at the Conrad Hilton, swinging riot sticks and spraying chemical Mace.

The police sometimes overreacted, Muskie said, because they are "human beings, moved by events," but they "should not assume that everyone in a crowd... is activated by the same thing."

The senator's departure from the stiffer approach to law and order adopted by the vice president seemed most apparent when he was questioned without direct reference to Chicago.

"I think that I'd use two words (in dealing with protests)," Muskie said. "One, the word restraint, and two, the word communication. I think people on both sides ought to practice them."

Law enforcement is not just a matter of maintaining order, he said. Justice also is necessary to make it possible for anyone "to improve his own life."

Muskie's approach to the events in Chicago is important because it suggests he will not follow too closely every position of Humphrey's during the campaign.

The senator said after the program that he and Humphrey took the same basic approach to problems, but that Humphrey had not told him what he should say on even the main issues.

On Vietnam, Muskie again took a more dovish stance than the administration. Before his nomination, he had suggested that a bombing halt in North Vietnam would be worth the risk.

He did not repeat that on "Meet the Press" Sunday, but during a news conference later he said that an end to the bombing "at the appropriate time" could contribute to peace.

Man Decapitated by Freight Train

SALIDA (UPI) — Alvaro Nevarez, 35, Salida, was decapitated when he was run over by a freight train. Sheriff's officers said Nevarez was sitting on the Southern Pacific tracks as the train approached. A railway employee said he saw the victim try to stand, then fall backward on the tracks.

LBJ to Be Used Sparingly by HHH

By JACK BELL

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democrats' new commander, may make sparing use of President Johnson in his campaign against Republican Richard M. Nixon.

Although Humphrey will never be caught saying so either publicly or privately, there is no doubt he recognizes the antipathy to the president voters registered in the presidential primaries and is well aware of Johnson's low estate in the public opinion polls.

The fact that Johnson elected not to appear at the convention after Humphrey's nomination seemed to some to indicate the President felt he might get a cool reception from many delegates and a hot reaction from the antiwar protesters in the streets of downtown Chicago.

JOHNSON'S associates say the President is quite willing to subordinate his own political inclinations — which always have been to get into the thick of the fight — to the desires of the man who has been his faithful subordinate for four years.

Gov. John Connally of Texas, one of Johnson's close personal friends, said in an interview he thinks the President will take his cue from Humphrey in any campaign activity.

"I'm sure the President will be available but it will be up to the vice president to decide how he wants to run his campaign," Connally said.

Faced with a deep cleavage in his party on the Vietnam war issue, Humphrey seems likely to come up with some suggestions for new approaches toward ending the conflict. But this cannot be accomplished at the expense of repudiating Johnson's record. On domestic issues, he asserted in his acceptance speech that Johnson had "accomplished more of the unfinished business of American than any of his modern predecessors," and he is quite willing to stand on the Democratic administration's record.

Johnson had said previously he hoped that the Democratic nominee's position would not be too divergent from Nixon's. He seemed to have got his wish on Vietnam, since Humphrey and Nixon occupy approximately parallel positions in opposition to an unconditional end to the bombing of North Vietnam.

THIS WAS THE principal point of departure of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, Humphrey's chief opponent for the nomination, from the customary posture of a defeated candidate in supporting the nominee.

Combined with the lukewarm endorsement given Humphrey by Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, another contender, this seemed to indicate that Humphrey will get no more support than Nixon from the youthful contingent that calls the war immoral and insists it must be ended quickly at almost any cost.

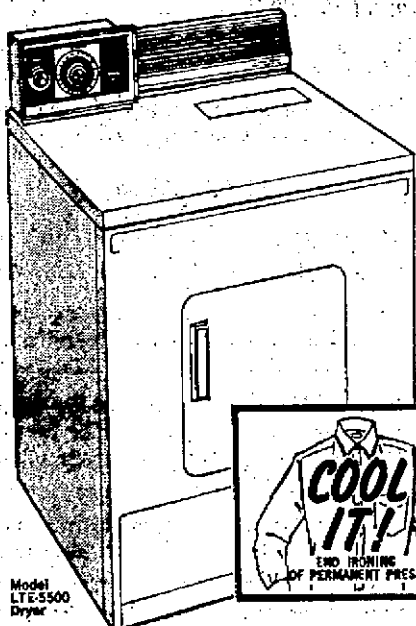

The threat of a Negro vote desertion, voiced by the Rev. Ralph Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership conference at a protest rally, struck at one of the pillars of Democratic strength.

Black Power Parley Urges Separate Negro Nation in U.S.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)

Creation of a "separate, free, independent nation for black people" in five southern states — "by arms if necessary" — was adopted as an official recommendation Sunday by one workshop of the third National Conference on Black Power.

The idea, submitted to a workshop on black independence, was announced at a news conference called by Milton R. Henry, Pontiac, Mich., first vice president of the Republic of New Africa, founded this year at a meeting in Detroit. White reporters had been barred from all previous news conferences and activities of the four-day black power meeting which ended Sunday.

Art Peters, city editor of the semi-weekly Philadelphia Tribune who, with other Negro newsmen, was allowed to attend one workshop and briefings, said the more than 3,000 delegates formulated plans "aimed at achieving an independent black nation within the U.S."

Peters said Dr. Nathan Hare, the conference chairman, told the assembled delegates that black people were opposed to violence but would no longer allow themselves to be "mongrelized, brutalized, patricized and ostracized." Hare, who was dismissed from the Howard University sociology department because of his militant views, declared that "when black people arm, it is to stop violence against black people."

Peters said militants Ron Karenga of the California Black Panthers and Lerol Jones, the poet and playwright, attended the conference along with such moderates as New York City Police Inspector Arthur Hill, Andrew G. Freeman of the Philadelphia Urban League and actor Ozzie Davis.

Listed as president of the "government" was Robert F. Williams, who fled to Red China in 1966 after the government sought him on kidnap charges. Williams is founder of the Revolutionary Action Movement (RAM), a Peking-oriented Negro extremist group.

Henry (Brother Galdi), an attorney, said his republic is the only "viable alternative" because "the ten-year failure of non-violence proves the white majority in the U.S. does not want to change the status quo and cannot be made to do so by the black minority." Henry said creation of a separate government for blacks was an "alternative to continued racial violence."

The mechanics of physically setting up a territory in the south as a black nation were not spelled out in detail, but outlined in general terms. However, Henry said it would start with purchasing land somewhere in Mississippi on which to build a city for black people. It would include encouraging Negroes to emigrate to Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina to gain political control.

A booklet, explaining the founding of the republic, said elections would be held "among ourselves" before the eyes of the world with United Nations observers, to take our consent from the government of the United States and give that consent to the Republic of New Africa."

It said that under international law government derives "from the consent of the governed" and that blacks "have the right to choose whether we want the old oppressive government of the United States or our own new government." The booklet added:

RON KARENGA
Black Panther Leader

"By arms if necessary."

It concluded that the land in the South "where we have lived and worked the land and clung to it for 300 years despite the most brutal oppression the world has known" is illegally held in captivity as a colony by the U.S. government.

Rafferty's College Goal — Stop Reds

there (They were separated four years after their 1938 Mexican marriage, and got a divorce a year after that.)

RAFFERTY did belong to a fraternity — Sigma Pi — and was so active in its social and athletic activities that he eventually became president.

And he certainly was active in campus politics — as his involvement in the UCLA Americans and several other campus groups clearly shows.

Roy Swannfeldt, now a free-lance writer, was editor of the student newspaper, the Daily Bruin, in 1937-38, and he remembers the young Rafferty as "an arrogant, swaggering kid who kicked up a storm over communism while I was busy worrying about the Nazis."

Swannfeldt said Rafferty "saw a Communist under every bed" — a charge echoed by Rafferty's first wife, Virginia, now a South Bay schoolteacher.

THE FIRST Mrs. Rafferty, also a Republican, is a soft-spoken woman who bears her first husband no recriminations, who has never campaigned against him and who agreed to speak about him to The Independent, Press-Telegram only after the most persistent and impassioned pleading by reporters.

She remembers Rafferty and the UCLA Americans "going around campus, breaking up suspected Communist cell meetings and anything else they didn't like," and she said that in her senior year at UCLA, when she was in line for the presidency of the campus YWCA, Rafferty ordered her to reject the position because he felt the Y was "a hotbed for Communist causes."

Stanley Rubin, editor of the Daily Bruin in 1936-37 and now a prominent Hollywood movie ("The President's Analyst") and television ("General Electric Theater") producer, had a running battle with Rafferty: over campus radicals during his tenure on the paper.

Rafferty wrote several scathing letters to Rubin, accusing him of promoting communism, and — in one — suggesting he "change the paper's print to crimson and rename it 'The Hammer and Sickle.'"

"HE WAS a hot-tempered kook," Rubin recalls. "I remember one time he got so angry over an editorial I wrote that he came crashing into the office in his ROTC uniform and boots, looking every bit like a stormtrooper. He had two big football players with him, and he said they were going to beat the hell out of me."

Rubin says the entire newspaper staff had to swarm to his rescue, forcibly pulling Rafferty off him and ejecting him from the office.

That wasn't the only time Rafferty and the UCLA Americans threatened violence to those who disagreed with them.

In late 1934, shortly after the organization was formed, a Daily Bruin reporter had asked for a full explanation of their purpose. He was told he'd be "punched in the nose" the next time he asked such a question.

That same year, when students threatened to boycott classes over the ouster of five student body officers who were accused (and later cleared) of "turning the campus over to Communists," the UCLA Americans warned they were "ready to handle any walkout or disturbance."

BECAUSE of these actions, the Daily Bruin castigated the UCLA Americans as "vigilantes espousing the cause of violence."

Chandler Harris, now director of public information at UCLA, notes with a wry grin the parallels between the campus today and in 1934, when he and Rafferty were students there.

"You know, it's funny," Harris says. "We had threatened student strikes and antiwar protests and everything else then, too. Rafferty was a part of it, but he seems to have forgotten. The UCLA Americans, for example, were an illegal and unrecognized organization. They had no official campus status — much like the student groups Rafferty now criticizes."

"They even set up tables and handed out American Flags on campus one year — not that there's anything wrong with that; it's great. But it was against the regulations. You couldn't set up tables on campus to hand out anything."

IRONICALLY it was just this issue — the setting up of tables by politically oriented groups — that helped ignite the free speech controversy at the University of California and many of the subsequent campus demonstrations. Dr. Rafferty now considers "a disrupting and disgusting abuse and prostitution of the right to free speech."

While at UCLA, Rafferty was also an equipment manager for the football team, and president of the managers organization, Ball and Chain.

When several managers were expelled from the group by the school administration, Rafferty demanded their immediate reinstatement under threat of having all managers boycott the weekend's football game against cross-town rival, USC.

The Daily Bruin urged the administration not to "capitulate" to these "dictatorial demands." Though the paper did not suggest the Marines be called in to assure the game was played — as Rafferty did last year when a San Jose State College football game was canceled because of racial unrest — the language of the editorial was strikingly similar to that Rafferty used in the San Jose incident and other student-administration confrontations on the nation's campuses.

WITHIN weeks of the student manager battle, Rafferty was impeached as president of Ball and Chain on charges he had "shown a conspicuous lack of interest in the organization and neglected duties which were naturally expected of him."

He was later reinstated, and Leonard Davison, prime mover in the impeachment, said the original action has been taken "to awaken him to the responsibilities of his position."

"We'll do it every day," Davison said "if that's the only way to get him to do some work."

Rafferty later resigned from Ball and Chain, graduated from UCLA in 1938, tried unsuccessfully to get a job as a newspaper reporter, pumped gas for a year or so and — at the urging of his then first wife-to-be — returned to UCLA in 1939 to get his teaching credential.

In the fall of 1940, he took his first teaching job in the small desert town of Trona, where — as at UCLA and every other place he's been — he became a stormy figure, as well as controversial.

Cinderella Theme Breaks Miss America Tradition

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Miss America Pageant — regarded by many as camp or corn and accepted by most as an institution — brings to life the world of Cinderella for 50 young and beautiful women this week.

When the spectacle climaxes Saturday night with the crowning of Miss America 1969, it will have been witnessed by an estimated 20,000 persons in Convention Hall and 110 million on television — one of the largest audiences in video history.

"It's corny," concedes Albert Marks, the pageant's executive producer. "It's Cinderella all the way, but it's something that everyone identifies with."

Miss America, it seems, is what little girls dream of, what mothers think their daughters are, and what men hope their wives will be.

THIS YEAR'S theme is "Once Upon a Someday," a tale about a little girl who looks into a mirror and dreams of becoming Miss America — and, of course, she does.

The tradition-bound pageant has come a long way since it started in 1921 as a bit of cheesecake cooked up by some local businessmen to keep the tourists in town for another week of salt, sun and salt water taffy after Labor Day. But this year's pageant is already breaking with tradition.

Perennial emcee Bert Parks will be back, only he will be crowning a different tune. Instead of the familiar "There She Is, Miss America," it will be "Look At Her, Miss America."

In another area, pageant officials responded to criticism from civil rights groups that accused it of being "lily white," and said last month they would take steps to encourage more Negro girls to enter at the local level.

This included promises of contributing an annual $1,000 scholarship to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; authorization of Negro colleges to hold local contests and the inclusion of Negroes in the judging panel for the national finals.

THE PAGEANT said it asked three Negro entertainers — Diahann Carroll, Lena Horne and Leslie Ugams — to serve this year, but prior commitments prevented their acceptance.

Of the 70,000 girls who entered the 3,500 local pageants this year, only 40 to 50 were Negroes, the pageant said. No Negro has ever made it to Atlantic City as a state queen, and that includes this year's group.

The dropping of "There She Is," with which Parks and the pageant have been closely associated for 13 years, aroused some controversy when it was disclosed a few months ago.

The composer, Bernie Wayne of New York, said he was fired after he demanded more money for the use of it and 88 other pageant songs. With him went the rights to use it. Marks said the theme was bumped because it didn't fit in with this year's production.

FOR THE FIRST time in the contest's history, all the girls are college students or graduates. Pageant officials take great pride in pointing to the girls' intellectual attributes.

At stake, in addition to fame, glamour and a fabulous wardrobe, is a $10,000 scholarship. A total of $60,000 in scholarships will be handed out to the girls, each of whom has won scholarships in the local and state contests.

Since the scholarship program began in 1945 — the year Bess Myerson won the title — the beauties have taken home more than $6 million — making the pageant the largest single source of academic scholarships for women.

The title also means nearly $85,000 in personal appearance contracts. That's about what this year's Miss America, Debra Barnes of Moran, Kan., picked up in 200,000 miles of traveling during her reign.

But the title had its drawbacks. During her reign, Miss America can never let her hair down and slip into blue jeans, or go to sorority parties, or date.

SHE CAN'T even be in the company of a man — excluding her father — without the presence of her constant traveling companion and chaperone.

The "no-mah" edict also applies this week for the 50 girls — from the time they arrive this weekend, through registration Monday, Tuesday afternoon's parade, and the four nights of competition that begin Wednesday.

50 Beauties Unpack in Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI) — Fifty girls unpacked their bags Sunday as they prepared for a hectic week of activity which will lead to the crowning of one of them as Miss America 1969.

Cloudy skies and intermittent rain was the weather much of the day at this resort city, its resident population of 60,000 swelled to several times that by thousands of Labor Day weekend visitors.

At the huge Convention Hall, scene of Saturday night's nationally televised finale, workmen cleaned up after a six-week run by the Ice Capades, which ended Saturday night. The hall must be ready by Wednesday night, the first of three evenings of preliminary competition.

ALL contestants were scheduled to arrive by Sunday night, with the first official business of the pageant this afternoon when the girls register and pose for a group picture.

Some of the beauties spent Sunday posing for pictures, taping television interviews for home stations and in the evening attended an informal Dutch treat dinner along with their state chaperones.

Upon arrival the girls were introduced to their local hostess, who will be with them nearly every moment until the end of the pageant. It's the job of the hostesses to make sure the contestants observe all the strict rules of the contest.

Also checking in Sunday were the 10 judges whose job it will be to select the successor to Debra Dene Barnes, Miss America 1968. Among the judges are television personality Ed McMahon, opera singer Lucia Albanese, and Mrs. Helen Meyner, wife of former Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey.

THE THEME of this year's pageant is "Once Upon A Someday," a story about a little girl who looks into a mirror and dreams of becoming Miss America. According to Howard A. Marks Jr., the pageant's executive director, the show is designed to be "100 per cent escapist entertainment."

Meanwhile, plans went ahead for the Miss Black America pageant Saturday night at a motel a few blocks from Convention Hall. The contest is sponsored by a group of Negroes who have attacked the Miss America pageant as being "lily white."

Twenty Negro girls are entered in the competition whose top prize is a trophy, a complete wardrobe and an all-expense paid trip to Puerto Rico. Miss America 1969 will win a $10,000 scholarship and an estimated $90,000 in personal appearance contracts.

Satellite Will Ease Air Delays

NASA Says System
Will Aid Pilots,
Controllers in '70s
By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) —
The traffic problem that often causes lengthy takeoff and landing delays at major airports may be eased considerably in the early 1970s by a network of precise navigation and control satellites.

The satellites could lower required separation distances between aircraft, warn high-flying supersonic jets of radiation dangers, guide craft around bad weather, monitor plane systems for possible trouble, and pinpoint ditched planes or ships in distress.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration estimated the system would provide reliability and confidence to air traffic controllers and pilots to permit reduction of the present, widely spaced separation standards of 13.8 miles laterally, 20 minutes flying time longitudinally and 2,000 feet vertically.

THEY SAID that if the separation standards were changed to 10.3 miles laterally, 15 minutes longitudinally and 1,000 feet vertically that $46.5 million would be saved annually by aircraft operating in the heavily traveled North Atlantic region alone.

The latitude, longitude and altitude of an aircraft could be computerized rapidly by the satellites and associated ground equipment at air terminals. The system could tell instantly when two planes were on a collision course and warn them via a satellite radio channel.

The system would permit controllers to better plot the location of planes and thus facilitate planning for landings and takeoffs.

A Navy network of navigation satellites has been operating several years, helping submarines and ships plot their positions with an accuracy of about 600 feet. Last year many of the details of the system were declassified so that commercial shipping could use the satellites.

NOW, THE Air Force, Navy and NASA are studying next generation satellites that might provide a position accuracy of about 100 feet. Conventional earth-based navigation techniques are accurate to within only two to four miles.

The Navy orbited its first transit navigation satellite in 1960 and has launched several since in perfecting the system. Last March 1, it launched the first of a new series called Navy Navigation Satellite NNS.

A total of four navigation satellites now are operating, primarily in support of the Polaris missile submarine program.

RCA's Astro-Electronics Division, which is building 12 NNS satellites under technical direction of the applied physics laboratory of Johns Hopkins University, reports the NNS system will enable commercial vessels to reduce their ocean-crossing time by as much as 10 per cent.

NASA's Electronics Research Center is handling that agency's navigation satellite program, which eventually envisions a network of evenly spaced satellites 22,300 miles above the earth. A ground or aircraft could be in touch with as many as six of them simultaneously for extremely accurate positioning. Another advantage is that the satellites would send a steady signal to computers and would require no interrogation by the user.

Heads Tiny Navy

TEL AVIV (AP) — Rear Adm. Abraham Botzer assumed command of Israel's tiny Navy Sunday and warned the fleet it must absorb new weapons but be prepared for war with the present armament. Botzer, 38, took over from Rear Adm. Shlomo Erel, 48, commander the past two years.

Fugitive GI Shoots Own Self

Combined News Services

FRESNO (AP) — An AWOL paratrooper, hunted for three days in sunblist hills by posses, planes and a helicopter, surrendered Sunday, then whipped out a hidden revolver and shot himself.

Deputies said Darrell Chavarria, 18, Klamath Falls, Ore., pulled a small hand gun and shot himself in the head as he was being led to the booking desk at the county jail.

Chavarria, absent without leave from Ft. Bragg, N.C., was listed in fair condition at general hospital.

THE TEEN-AGER turned himself over to irrigation field workers in a cotton field near Coalinga a few hours before the shooting. They called deputies, who disarmed him of three other weapons, but apparently missed the small pistol.

Chavarria was the object of a widespread hunt since early Friday when he allegedly kidnaped Greenfield, Calif., policeman John McCarter, 28, at gunpoint when the officer arrested him on suspicion of driving a stolen car.

Using the same hidden pistol trick, Chavarria disarmed McCarter and two military policemen from Fort Ord and escaped with their weapons.

The AWOL soldier forced McCarter to drive him from Monterey County toward Coalinga in a patrol car. Dozens of officers followed in cautious pursuit as Chavarria broadcast warnings that he would kill the officer if police interfered.

CHAVARRIA commandeered a pickup truck when the patrol car ran out of gas. He abandoned the truck and McCarter when he ran it into a ravine.

Dozens of officers and a helicopter unit scoured the countryside throughout the weekend.

Deputies in Fresno said Chavarria told them when he pulled the pistol that he "intended to shoot himself and no one else."

Rescue Lad From Chilly Mountain

BATTLE MOUNTAIN, Nev. (AP) — A California youngster, who spent a chilly night injured and alone on a mountain ledge was rescued Sunday morning.

Marty Helwig of Rio Linda, said his son Terry, 14, fell 75 feet "head first" from an outcropping on Mount Tobin, 30 miles south of here, when he was surprised by a rattlesnake. The boy suffered a slight concussion and possible spinal injuries.

Helwig said he, his son, and two companions had climbed the mountain in an effort to find the wreckage of a C-54 airplane which crashed there last winter. Helwig owns an aircraft salvage firm and said he wanted to see if the wreckage was salvageable.

However, they realized they were on the wrong side of the mountain and about 6 p.m. started back down again, when the accident occurred.

San Joaquin Valley Bitter over Boycott

By JERRY E. HENRY

DELANO (UPI) — Bitterness and recrimination reign this Labor Day holiday in California's San Joaquin Valley where striking grape workers are seeking to organize farm labor, one of America's last major non-union work forces.

The drive, launched here three years ago, has resulted in a boycott of California table grapes causing controversy all over the nation.

The boycott was called by Cesar Chavez, director of the AFL-CIO Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC). Chavez has long been committed to nonviolence — so much so he fasted last spring for 25 days to rededicate himself to that cause.

His boycott has drawn expressions of support from city mayors, labor leaders and the three major Democratic presidential contenders including the nominee, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

But in California, and especially in the rich San Joaquin Valley, the boycott has been met with outrage and bitter denunciation.

A long-time Democratic regular and President Pro Tempore of the state Senate, Hugh M. Burns of Fresno, has declared he will not support Humphrey because of the latter's endorsement of the boycott.

Saturday, the California State Chamber of Commerce announced it was sending 80,000 letters to business leaders, trade associations and chambers of commerce throughout the nation urging opposition to the boycott.

Chamber President, A. P. Beckman called the boycott an effort to organize workers by "blackmailing their employees."

Chambers of commerce, city councils and county supervisors, with few exceptions, have adopted similar resolutions.

Chavez announced Friday that he has boycott crews set up in some 200 cities in Canada and the United States with the latest concentrated efforts aimed at markets in Seattle and Spokane.

CESAR CHAVEZ
Farm Labor Leader

Chavez insists the effort is paying off.

"The boycott is the best weapon we've found and we're going to stick with it right through the winter," he said Friday. "We're nipping them (growers) pretty good and we're going to nicker them some more."

Chavez said that while most grapes still were moving to market, farmers were "dumping" them at low prices and suffering losses.

"We've seen some grapes going for as low as three pounds for 19 cents when they normally go at 29-39 cents a pound," he said.

But Delano grower Jack Pandolfi had a different story.

Pandolfi said he planned to finish picking this week and added, he was selling his crop at about $3.25 per lug (26 pound) or about 25 cents less than average.

"I don't know of anyone who has been unable to sell his grapes," Pandolfi said.

Numerous chain stores in New York and other cities have stopped the sale of California grapes. Growers condemn the action as violation of federal law prohibiting secondary boycotts. Chavez insists his boycott is consumer-oriented and therefore not a secondary boycott.

He emphasized the picket lines in front of stores are only to inform the public of the farm worker situation and urge shoppers not to buy non-union harvested grapes.

"We're getting a lot of people involved in this thing," he said. "We're making a lot of good friends."

Most of them, however, probably are not in the agriculture-oriented San Joaquin Valley.

Ask Boycott of Grape Boycotters

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Senate Leader Hugh M. Burns has urged Gov. Ronald Reagan to retaliate against the California grape boycott by refusing to buy goods from states supporting the effort.

The Fresno lawmaker termed the boycott a "strictly politically motivated campaign" inspired by a "tiny unrepresentative group of labor bosses."

He commanded the Republican governor for a "strong, statesmanlike and courageous stand on this issue" and announced he would endorse no Democratic candidate for office who supported the nationwide boycott called by the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO.

Sacramento Soup Firm Strike Ends

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A tentative settlement was reached Sunday in the five-week-old strike at the Campbell Soup Co. plant here, federal mediator Roger L. Randall announced.

Randall said members of the Sacramento Food Processors Union will vote on the agreement Tuesday. No details of the agreement were disclosed.

Randall, who had been conducting talks with union and company representatives since Thursday, said the agreement was reached at about 2:30 a.m.

The bitter Sacramento strike idled more than 1,300 food processors and resulted in more than 50 arrests of pickets outside the plant.

Last week, strikes were ended at Campbell plants in Camden, N.J., and Paris, Tex.

Seize Cocaine Cache, Nab Chilean Sailor

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Authorities have arrested a ship's mechanic on a Chilean nitrate freighter here and a Chilean in New York City in connection with the seizure of $300,000 worth of cocaine.

Sheriff's Inspector John A. Salla said agents boarded the ship, which had arrived here Monday, and arrested Umberto Travucco, 37, of Tocopilla, Chile, on a narcotics law violation charge.

Salla said they alerted authorities in New York, who arrested Ramon Enrique Carajal Altaro as he picked up a package mailed to him from Tampa.

ON THE STRETCH of Sunset Boulevard where movie stars used to shop in fashionable shops and dine in expensive, soft-lighted bistros, hippies now congregate. Since the hippie invasion of the Strip three years ago, property values have declined up to 30 per cent.

ONCE AVENUE OF STARS

Hippies Making Shambles of Famed Sunset Strip

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Once a sedate avenue of specialty shops and after-dark dining and entertainment spots, the Sunset Strip is now clogged with hippies, at a cost of millions of dollars to businessmen and property owners.

Since the long-haired set moved in three years ago, real estate values and retail sales have plunged an estimated 30 per cent, the sheriff's force has been increased from 47 to 108, and arrests have jumped 250 per cent.

Fashionable shops where movie queens and producers' wives once browsed have been supplanted largely by psychedelic shops and other teen-age-oriented businesses, including three dance halls. Adding to the spectacle of gaudy confusion are the traffic jams; the pedestrian crush on the sidewalks often progresses faster than motorists.

"The strip has always been a busy place," says Carl Victor, Sunset Strip realtor and president of the West Hollywood Realty Board. "Tourists and sightseers used to come for a glimpse of a movie star. Now they come to look at the hippies."

The Los Angeles County assessor's office now is studying market values on much of the two-mile-long strip. A spokesman says, "It looks as though there will be some reduction in property values there."

More candidly, County Supervisor Ernest E. Debs remarks, "I know property values are down 30 per cent there and that property depreciation is running into millions. One financial institution alone puts its loss at $500,000."

Attempts by property owners and businessmen to stem the hippie invasion, have failed. A loitering law was found unconstitutional and a curfew law was interpreted to mean that a juvenile is within the law if he can show he is en route from one place to another.

Recently, county officials have ordered no evening parking on the strip, daily garbage collection and better lighting in bars and restaurants.

The latest measure, to take effect Oct. 19, will prohibit liquor from being served in youth dance establishments. Presently the youth dance operations sell liquor to adults, and no soft drink youth dance venture has survived.

Change Girl Held for Boss' Death

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Las Vegas police have arrested a casino money change girl on a murder charge in the shooting of a drive-in restaurant owner whom she tried to revive with oxygen.

LL John McCarthy said Louise Kuehl, 34, was booked and was being held in a hospital room. Officers said she suffers a heart condition.

They said Wilson H. Frayer, 49, owner of Bill's Redhots, died Friday after he was shot in the chest at Miss Kuehl's apartment.

Officers said he had forced his way into the apartment and insisted she accompany him on a vacation.

McCarthy said a coroner's inquest will be held to decide if Miss Kuehl will be arraigned on the murder charge. He said the incident is still being investigated.

Officers said Miss Kuehl tried to revive Frayer with an oxygen tank she keeps at her home before calling a doctor.

NOW INDIANS COME TO SEE THE HIPPIES

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The Santa Fe Chamber of Commerce's monthly bulletin says there has been a change among sightseers in New Mexico's capital.

"The tourists used to come to Santa Fe to see the Indians," the bulletin said. "Now the Indians are coming to Santa Fe to see the hippies."

1968 — Best, Worst of Times for Unions

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Jack Cox, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Union Local 572 of Long Beach, was slightly vexed. He was pondering a question that has plagued the labor movement ever since the AFL merged with the CIO in 1955:

How to bring the vast pool of unorganized workers into the union movement fast enough to keep pace with the nation's population growth.

It's no secret that unions have picked up large numbers of new members in the past decade, but labor spokesmen concede the growth in membership has "barely offset" the losses resulting from plant shutdowns and automation, among other things.

"Union membership rolls have remained rather constant" in recent years, while the work force has steadily expanded, says William L. Kircher, the AFL-CIO's national director of organization.

To Cox, whose organizing activities are confined to the Long Beach area, labor's relatively static position is a course of minor irritation.

"With all the benefits unions offer," he said, "it's hard to understand why so many workers remain unorganized. It really bugs me."

"You know what many of those nonunion people are making around here?" he asked. "Barely the minimum wage of $1.65 an hour!"

Cox said he was referring to many persons working in small job shops and manufacturing operations, as well as unorganized retail establishments and some service fields.

I DON'T SEE how they can exist on that kind of money," he said. "They got no fringe-benefit setup at all, and often they're cheated on overtime."

Yet Cox was far from being pessimistic. Although the Teamsters in this area haven't been able to keep up with the growing work force, they've made substantial membership gains in the past few years, he said.

The same appears true of Los Angeles and Orange

Counties generally, where the AFL-CIO has picked up an estimated 10,000 new members in the past two years.

In representation elections, too, there have been wins and losses.

But Labor Day finds Southern California's union movement neither gloating over its gains nor despairing of its defeats.

As County Labor Federation Chief Sigmund Arywitz and others indicate, it has been a good year for labor, as well as a bad one—with neither the good nor the bad overwhelming the other.

If any single event in Southern California stands out above all others in the past year, union leaders agree it's the nine-month Herald-Examiner strike in Los Angeles.

Arywitz maintains that the unions will hold on "until the strike is settled favorably," but others are less optimistic; and privately, more than a few labor people are convinced the union cause is almost lost.

"Either we win in the next four months," confides one union figure, "or we lose everything."

In the view of one union leader — Bill Piercy, Southern California regional director of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union — the Herald strike-lockout "is the most tragic thing that's happened to U.S. labor in years."

Not only have the 2,000 striking and locked-out workers suffered heavily, but labor has gravely impaired its own image and solidarity by failing to effectively unite behind the workers in a winning effort, Piercy feels.

The unions, it is generally agreed, have been hurt most by management's use of "strikebreakers", who have been putting out the paper while the dispute drags on.

MEANWHILE, with both sides having already lost millions of dollars, according to labor estimates, the 11 unions in the strike have launched a national boycott of Hearst Corp. enterprises and advertisers.

In a way, say labor people, the Hearst strike is typical of Southern California labor-management disputes. According to many union leaders, Southland employers seem

Lifeguards Watch, Wait to Save Lives

By TONY CILLO
Staff Writer

They watch and wait. And everyone gets the idea all they're doing is sitting around soaking up sunshine and attracting girls. Maybe so. But if that is part of a lifeguard's job, it's just a fringe benefit.

His job — his No. 1 job — is to save lives.

On the Long Beach strands, 122 lifeguards keep watch over bathers, boaters, sun worshippers and surfers during the peak summer season which draws as many people to the beach on one day as live in some small cities. During the rest of the year, the beach is guarded by 29 men on a full-time basis.

SPENDING A day on duty with the guards at headquarters at the foot of Cherry Avenue gives an outsider the impression it's a pretty cushy job — until he stops to think that the guards are trained for that moment when someone will need help. That moment makes up for the hours of sitting, watching . . . and waiting.

The guard's day may begin in the morning or afternoon, depending upon which shift he has been assigned and which duty station. It may begin at night if he has been assigned to an after-dark beach patrol with a Long Beach police officer.

Coming on duty, the guard works out: Push-ups, running, loosening-up swim. It's part of the "keeping in shape."

Other training is given periodically. "Bill Ward handles workouts and first-aid training," said Capt. Vic Miller, second in command in the city lifeguard organization.

ASKED WHAT items are kept on hand for first aid, one lifeguard started out, "Paper cups . . ."

"Paper cups!" exclaimed the uninitiated one incredulously.

For sand in the eye, the lifeguard explained, and rinsing the eye — a frequent first aid treatment.

There are others, of course — cuts, nips from jellyfish and other sea creatures and overexposure, for instance. In cases of major illnesses or accidents, the guards give first-aid help while an ambulance is en route to the beach to take the victim to a hospital or doctor.

Part of the guard's duty time — especially on those LABOR DAY. By the calendar, it's still deep summer. But for many, this is summer's last fling. Autumn's activities don't wait for September 21. They start after this weekend when most people say farewell to the holiday period and bend their backs and thoughts to things more serious.

So unofficially, the day marks a change of seasons. It's a reminder of time's inexorable march.

Time, the stern master of all things. It gives no quarter. It suffers no interruption. Those who want more of it can't have it, those who want less of it have to take only its meted allowance.

All living things eventually die. Nature's processes are never certain — they are vulnerable to storms, floods, frosts, volcanic action, earthquakes, a host of interruptive incidents big and small.

But not time. It never stands still. It never accelerates and it never decelerates. The sure and unchanged pace, yesterday, today and forever.

Men tie their lives to it by assorted devices, from the prisoner's marks on the rough wall to the great clock in the shining tower. Some watch it pass fearfully, others impatiently, all powerlessly.

Today, it occurs to us we have a third of this year left. But that fraction disappears into infinity as a fragment of the limitless stretches of time.

WELL! I got started on that, it just ran through the typewriter, and I hope it doesn't lead to desperation or deflation of ego for anybody. If it does anything for humility, o.k.

What I really started to do was to write a little about September, a month which has, on occasion, been berated and demeaned in this pillar. On my second

Ask U.S. Funding for Park

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Councilmen will be asked Tuesday to approve the filing of an application for $631,064 in federal funds to help finance expansion of Drake Park.

The existing park is about two acres, and lies immediately to the west of Maine Avenue between 9th and 10th streets, with its westerly boundary at Park Circle. The proposed expansion would extend the westerly boundary to Loma Vista Drive, adding about four acres to the existing park.

THE COUNCIL approved the general development plan for Drake Park last April 9.

City Manager John R. Mansell said the city proposes to proceed as it did with Martin Luther King Jr. Park, applying to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to give financial aid under its "open space" program.

Under the program, Mansell explained, HUD contributes up to 50 per cent of the costs of acquisition, demolition and development for certain aspects of the program, and pays 100 per cent of relocation payments made to residents and businesses which might be displaced.

ACQUISITION and development of the Drake Park expansion is planned over a four-year period, with or without federal assistance, Mansell said.

PLAYHOUSE ADMINISTRATOR

Sybil Reed—Happy, Witty Actress Without a Stage

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a continuing series of personality profiles on the men and women whose actions have shaped and are shaping the destiny of Long Beach.)

By DAVID SHAW
Staff Writer

Sybil Reed sits ramrod-straight in the green leather chair behind her scarred and cluttered desk in the Community Playhouse office.

In front of her is a seating reservation chart for the next two playhouse productions. To her right, atop a TV tray, is an antiquated adding machine. To her left is a typewriter. Above the typewriter are huge day-by-day calendars for August and September, both bearing such reminders as "Awards," "Tryouts," "Teahouse Opens," "Board of Directors" and "Millionaire Closes."

As Mrs. Reed flits from calendar to chart to adding machine to typewriter in her duties as administrator and major domo of the playhouse, two elderly women approach the box office with a question about tickets for the weekend showing of "The Happiest Millionaire."

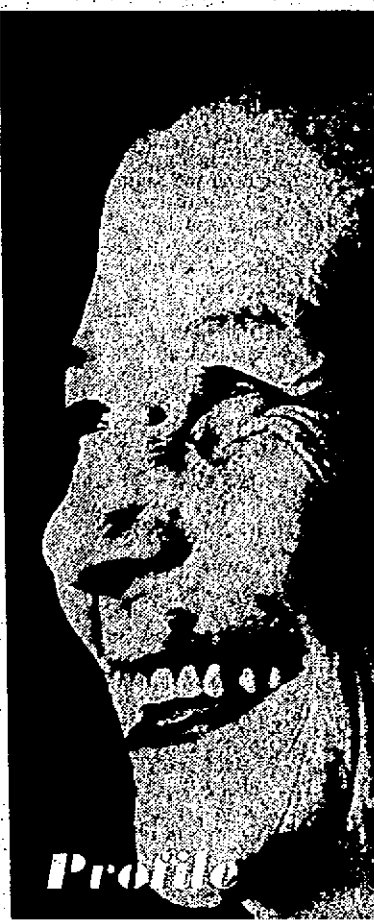

Mrs. Reed offers them the best seats available, and—while jotting their names down on the seating chart—asks one, "What was your husband's first name again? I never can remember it."

THE WOMAN smiles. "That's OK," she says. "You wouldn't know my husband anyway."

Mrs. Reed, a thin but sturdy 59, brushes a few graying hairs from her brow, and—wrinkles frolicking at the corners of her lips and eyes—says with mockingly mischievous leer, "Oh, don't be so sure of that."

Moments later, the telephone rings. Keith Houdeybell, a longtime playhouse performer, is checking with Mrs. Reed on the name of a woman he had just met. Mrs. Reed thinks he has her confused with someone else.

"You haven't been in the market for so long, you don't know what a blond looks like anymore," she cracks.

Hanging up, she gaily offers to refill a visitor's glass with lemonade. He reminds her he has had three glasses—and declines.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1968 PAGE B-2

Welcome Bit Of Medical Research

THE INCREASED expenses of being sick are properly the concern of the California Medical Association.

That's why it's encouraging to hear the professional members of this group are devoting timely efforts toward relieving the situation.

Dr. Malcolm C. Todd, president of the state association and a highly respected Long Beach physician, recently outlined details of a medical cost-quality study.

In an appearance before the Long Beach Rotary Club, Dr. Todd noted the study's objective was to make quality medical care available at the most economical cost possible.

Achievement of that objective, as Dr. Todd put it, includes "recognizing every decision the doctor makes for his patient carries a price tag."

It is a price tag for which many patients frequently solely blame the doctor, not taking into comparative consideration hospital, drug and diagnostic equipment costs, as well as the overall effect of inflation.

There are, of course, a few greedy doctors who unethically take financial advantage of their patients. These few are subject to the scrutiny of their colleagues. The patient has recourse by complaining to his local medical society.

THE MAJORITY of physicians should not arbitrarily be stamped with the greedy label. Indeed, if the concern expressed by Dr. Todd is representative of the state association's official attitude, the doctors are going to seriously attempt to heal the wounded wallet as well as the sick patient.

It would be unrealistic to believe that, in light of today's overall inflation, the medical profession will be able to complete hold the line on costs. But it is nice to know that they intend to try harder.

England's Schools Get A Reprieve

THE BRITISH Labor Government, which is supposed to be socialistic, is quietly burying a report from a commission proposing to socialize the class-conscious private boarding schools.

If adopted, the recommendation would require such schools as Eton and Harrow to open half their places to students sent there by the state at public expense.

According to the commission headed by Sir John Newsom, the private schools — which in Britain are mysteriously called public schools — constitute a "divisive influence in society." Except for a few holders of private or state scholarships, the students come exclusively from upper class families.

The Newsom Commission was appointed nearly three years ago. At the time the Labor Party was in a mood to revolutionize the boarding schools as a symbol of special privilege. Reports from London say the responsible government officials have changed their minds.

SENSIBLY, THEY have concluded that punishing the nobility isn't worth the money it would cost. As in the United States, the British are facing an array of social and educational needs. One of these is the urgency for new programs for deprived children in poor urban areas. Such youngsters could not be expected to gain much by being thrust into a strange environment with other children who barely speak the same language.

The British never seem to go all the way with socialism. How could they as long as the Queen reigns and the royal family commands more attention than the politicians?

TOWN MEETING

Prostitution Article Reaction

I am utterly amazed at the complete lack of taste displayed by your paper on Monday, Aug. 26.

I refer to the article on prostitution so blatantly exposed on the same page and in close proximity to the eulogy for a prominent local churchman.

The placing of literary trash, regardless of position, in a family type newspaper is inexcusable.

A responsible newspaper usually reflects the standards of the community in which it is distributed. I feel that your many fine correspondents are demeaned by the inclusion of trash such as this.

Long Beach MRS. JOHN F. CARNEY

As to the article of Aug. 26, "The Oldest Profession," written by your staff writer Barbara Knesis — I think it is in very bad taste.

I'd venture to say she'll be responsible for many young girls trying this profession and I hope she'll get her just punishment for doing such an article.

Long Beach MRS. R.B.

This is a sad day indeed when our local newspaper is so hard pressed for news that it releases such an article. The story was unnecessary, accomplished nothing, and almost seemed to glorify the illegal business of prostitution.

Signal Hill MRS. DON NEEDLE

As far as I am concerned I think your paper reached an all-time low in publishing it. How many girls and young women that read it will take this way of making their lives we will never know.

Long Beach GRACE W. MARCHANT

The writer of the article did not say anything about the end results of leading such a life. In fact, she seemed to make the whole thing most alluring with the reports of the great amount of money that could be made.

Wilmington MRS. J. THORN

Who knows whose lovely daughter might be enticed into prostitution by the rosy account of making so much money so quickly?

Another question, what about her income tax? Does she pay it?

GRACE STILGENBRAUR

In regard to the horrible filthy article I read on three women and their prostitute grade, please don't call them salesladies.

I'm an honorable and decent saleslady in a department store and I resent that.

Long Beach S. GRANT

Compton J.H. WHIDBEE

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The above are excerpts of numerous letters received by this newspaper concerning an article on local area prostitution.)

The newspaper feels its function is to mirror the activities within a community. Sometimes those activities cast a cloud on the mirror, but, nevertheless, the reflection must be shown. Otherwise, there could be no knowledge of the cloud.

To turn away the mirror would be tantamount to representing the angry letters in response to the public's new awareness of the cloud.

Nixon, HHH Aim for Centrist Majority

New York Times Service

CHICAGO — The presidential campaign is still operated on certain popular assumptions which may or may not be true. Hubert Humphrey, we are told, is still tied to President Johnson and Johnson's Vietnam policy. Richard Nixon is still tied to the old cold war policies of the past, and will seek the Presidency by appealing to the fears of those who are worried about the Communists, the Negroes and the demonstrators.

So, at least, many people say and they may be right, but it is probably unreasonable to suppose that while so many other things are changing these two men have remained the same as they were when their reputations were formed.

Therefore it will be interesting to watch the influence of this extraordinary situation on their personalities and characters. This is clearly the last chance for both of them. The challenge of the Presidency sometimes makes men more responsible, sometimes more desperate, but in the case of Nixon and Humphrey we do not know and will not know until we see how they react to the savage pressures of the next nine weeks.

Humphrey has obviously begun the process of liberation from the role of Lyndon Johnson's obedient servant. He was glowing in his praise of Johnson's domestic policies in his acceptance speech, but had not a single good word to say for Johnson's Vietnam policy. He did not go to the right for a vice presidential candidate — as Governor Connally of Texas, no doubt with President Johnson's approval, was urging him to do. He made an emotional appeal to Senators McCarthy and McGovern and to their youthful anti-Vietnam supporters for help, and his first act was to put the National Committee under Larry O'Brien.

The theme of his acceptance speech was that this was "a new day." His emphasis was on the future, and he made it explicit before the new leaders of the National Committee by refusing to be bound inflexibly to the wording of the compromise Vietnam platform.

NIXON HAD already asserted his own determination to lead the Republican party in his own way at Miami Beach. He has been roundly condemned for picking Gov. Spiro Agnew of Maryland as a vice presidential nominee who would somehow appeal to the anti-Negro sentiment in the country, but the more Governor Agnew is known, the less likely it is that he will be seen in this light.

Neither Agnew nor Senator Muskie, Humphrey's running mate, will be in a position to play a decisive role in this campaign.

JAMES RESTON

Hubert Must Practice Art of Impossible

CHICAGO — The birds of the bathroom struck within minutes after Hubert Humphrey nailed down the nomination.

As disheveled Democrats left the amphitheater, they filed past these graffiti scrawled on a washroom wall: "God may help HHH, but I won't."

That is the central problem the Democrats' new standard-bearer must solve as he prepares for a campaign against Richard Nixon. It is one he failed to solve throughout the convention and in his selection of a running mate, Sen. Edward Muskie.

It was once said of Al Smith after he emerged from Tammany's ranks,

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK
By BILL BROOM

"he followed orders until he was in a position to give them."

AND HUBERT Humphrey (happy warrior the 2nd?) has been saying defensively since he entered the race that he had been a member of the team in the Johnson administration but would cut loose once he became captain.

Humphrey's constant repetition of that refrain was a nice way of saying that he, too, recognizes the American public is sick and tired of Lyndon Johnson. Yet he stayed on the leash.

At the starting gate Sunday, he backtracked on the dovish statements he had been making on Vietnam and came down firmly (again) in the LBJ saddle.

As the prospective nominee, he could have insisted on a Vietnam platform plank that would have left half the doves cooling. He didn't.

THERE WAS still opportunity to dampen some of the rage that erupted Wednesday in the wake of the platform battle. One wonders what effect the surprise nomination of Adlai Stevenson III might have had on the McCarthyites. But Humphrey followed the Miami Beach formula.

The question now becomes will Hubert stray off the range or will he get along like all LBJ's other ill dogs?

Prior to the convention, the railbirds wondered when Hubert would cut loose. They're now wondering whether he will at all. It is inconceivable that he can blunt the law-and-order issue Nixon has raised, heal his own party's bitter split on Vietnam, while keeping one ear cocked for the crack of the lariat.

Nominating Humphrey Wednesday, Mayor Alioto of San Francisco dwelled at length on his tiger's ability and skill at the "art of the impossible."

THE RECORD is there in winning civil rights battle at Philadelphia in 1948, in the Senate where he overcame a loudmouth, liberal image to become a member of the Senate's inner club of maharajahs, and in the basketful of legislation he pushed through the Congress years before the neanderthals there were supposed to be receptive.

If Humphrey beats Nixon while still riding double-saddle with LBJ, he will have performed the most impossible act since Pat Garrett outdrew Billy the Kid.

LBJ Forced Viet Plank Fight

WASHINGTON — Looking back over the ebb and flow, the mistakes, the achievements of the recent Democratic convention, the most disruptive debate was that over peace in Vietnam. It left wounds that probably will not heal, either before or after November.

The tragedy is that it didn't have to happen.

If LBJ, sitting at his ranch in Texas, had taken his hands off the reins of the convention it wouldn't have happened at all.

But he didn't. Instead he seemed more interested in vindication for his own Vietnam policy than in the election of Hubert Humphrey next November.

Here is the inside story of what happened:

IT BEGAN WHEN the President insisted that his man, Representative Hale Boggs of New Orleans, head the platform committee. Instead of Senator Ed Muskie of Maine, whom Humphrey wanted, Boggs is highly competent, but HHH wanted Muskie in the spot in order to let the convention have a look at him as a vice presidential possibility.

Before the convention actually started, Boggs got three phone calls from LBJ, the last one at 1:30 a.m. Saturday, asking him to come back to Washington to confer. Boggs complied, along with Senator Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, chairman of the "riot" sub-committee of the platform committee. Officially they came back to confer on the Czech crisis; though actually they were given a special briefing by General William Westmoreland, former commander in Vietnam, now Army Chief of Staff, on the danger of suspending the bombing of North Vietnam.

Back in Chicago, a private task force was picked to work on the Vietnam plank, composed of Ted Sorensen, former counsel to President Kennedy, who in this case represented the McCarthy peace forces; and David Ginsberg, represented the Humphrey forces.

They came up with a plank on Vietnam which contained the President's view against any stopping of bombing which might endanger American life, but wrapped it up in language emphasizing the importance of peace.

When Charley Murphy delivered the text of the Vietnam plank at the ranch, the President is reported to have hit the ceiling. He junked the compromise wording worked out by Sorensen and Ginsberg and substituted a much briefer plank which endorsed the end of bombing if American lives were not endangered, but eliminated most of the phrases regarding hopes for peace.

IN FAIRNESS TO President Johnson it should be noted that he had intelligence reports that young Communists and Yippies in Chicago planned to whip up the debate over Vietnam in order to influence the truce talks in Paris.

One intelligence report received in Washington and passed on to the President stated that American Communists were quarreling over tactics; that Donald Hamerquist, the party's coordinator, argued that street violence would adversely affect Senator Eugene McCarthy's chances at Chicago.

But the New Left, according to the intelligence report, wanted to ram-page in the streets and force a confrontation with the police. The repercussions around the world, they argued, would demonstrate the strength of peace forces and help North Vietnamese negotiations in Paris.

SIDEWALK SENATE:

Would you like to be 19 again? (Asked at Bixby Park)

Dan Leonard, driver, Montebello: Sure. I think we all would. No matter what the age, we'd all like to relive life — and live it better.

Paula Evans, housewife, Los Angeles: Oh, I don't know, I don't think I'd want to go through it all again.

Paul Soveriano, retired carpenter, 245 Cherry St.: Yes, but I wouldn't do much different. I was 19 in 1906, and we didn't have a lot of the things we have now. But it would be interesting anyway.

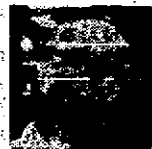

Demetrius Gurzi, retired shoe repairman, 2820 E. Fourth St.: Would I? No aches, no pains. I'm 64 now, and that would be going back a way. Boy!

George Ulevich, 743 Long Beach Blvd., retired: Yes. That wouldn't be a bad idea. I'll never see it though. If I did, it's hard to say what I'd do.

Luther O. Tucker, retired general foreman, 6039 Fairman St., Lakewood: Yes, I'd like to be 19 again — and know what I know now. The first thing I'd do is eliminate cigarettes. I'd live a good, clean life, go to church, and live by the Golden Rule.

Demetrius Gurzi, retired shoe repairman, 2820 E. Fourth St.: Would I? No aches, no pains. I'm 64 now, and that would be going back a way. Boy!

New Left Tactics Look Like the Same Old Thing

THIS IS a revolution. Anyone who watched the riot scenes in Chicago had to realize that this was not politics as usual. This was no peaceful assembly to petition redress of grievances.

Nor were some of the remarks said on the convention floor politics as usual. The demands for adjournment,

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By MARK CLUTTER

the excessive accounts of what was happening miles away, were revolutionary in nature.

So what else is new? The United States has had a long tradition of revolution, and, since 1932, the patterns of revolution have been Communist-oriented.

I remember 1932. I remember riding a freight train that carried more men than freight — homeless, desperate men roaring around the country, looking for something, work, a square meal, a good fight.

I REMEMBER an Army officer standing up in the messhall and saying, "God damn the President of the United States!"

I remember a troop of cavalry facing the mob, and the captain drawing his sword and saying, "By the power invested in me by the President of the United States, I order you to disperse!" The angry men boomed, and the horsemen rode in with riot sticks.

And in college there was a deep red tinge. Professors said things far out in left field. And there were Communists cells on the campus. I couldn't buy it, although I was a bit of a radical myself. I knew then, as I know now, that the Bill of Rights with all that it implies is all that separates us from political savagery. But some of my friends thought otherwise.

After World War II renewed my friendship with a college chum. She was a lovely lady, highly educated, a good wife and mother. She was kindly, gentle, sweet. But she was a Communist. As such, she could believe no wrong about Russia. Her mind was made up. Whatever monstrous thing Stalin did she ascribed either to our misunderstanding or outright lies told by the capitalistic press.

If she thinks now as she thought then, she is making a great case for Russia "liberating" the Czechoslovakians.

WE SHOULD have been done with these things after Stalin, but we apparently are not. We still have the deep pink professors and intellectuals and politicians who are playing the same game that they played in the depression-stricken years with more reason.

And the mobs — inspired by whom? — riot against order and law and the freedoms guaranteed by our Constitution.

As a young fellow I was a National Guardsman. We were taught then, as they are taught now, not to harm anyone except in self-defense, but to fight through the mob to the leaders in the rear. It probably won't work now. The leaders are too subtle, too sophisticated. At best the guardsmen could catch a few "petty officers."

The John Birch Society and other adde-pated rightists have done infinite harm to America. With their insistence that almost everybody else is a Communist, they have caused sensible Americans to be wary of "Wolff Wolf!" alarms about Communism.

THIS IS most unfortunate because events of recent years, and especially of last week, show the avowed patterns of the Communists. It's all there — infiltration of liberal ranks, planned disorders, attempts to force the police into monstrous action.

You don't have to believe me. I'm not an authority. I merely suggest that you read Marx and Lenin and other activists. They were never reticent about setting down in print what they intended to do.

A friend, listening to my ideas, suggested that this is a new leftism, a native American variety. Perhaps, but it looks remarkably like the past. The pattern of conduct is the same.

As in 1932, wise statescraft can frustrate this un-American growth. Does Mr. Nixon or Mr. Humphrey have what it takes?

That is the challenge they face.

Dead-End Jobs Lead to A Dead End

WHEN I was 15 years old, I began working as a copyboy on a newspaper, going to school days while working nights. I didn't have to; I just wanted to. But suppose that I had to — and suppose, further, that I knew I could never rise above the copyboy level.

What incentive would I have had to work hard and well, to take on extra assignments, to study my craft diligently, to prepare myself for eventual promotion? In a dead-end job, I would soon get to have a dead end.

I DON'T think enough people understand this about Negro workers — in the past, and still to a large extent today. White people tend to evaluate Negro workers by white standards and expectations, not by the more realistic appraisal Negroes make of their own chances.

Work must have a goal beyond mere subsistence if it is to give the worker any esprit or interest in the pay enough so that the worker can amuse himself, or must be essentially interesting, or at the least pay enough so that the worker can anticipate a higher standard of living, for his children if not for himself.

Most jobs available to Negroes in this country, in this century, have been deficient in all three elements. They have been dull and meaningless labor, offering no chance for advancement, and paying so little that only day-to-day satisfactions could be fulfilled. The "sense of the future," which keeps most white people going, has not operated, or only dimly, among the mass of Negro workers.

The whites' complaints about the Negroes' indolence and indifference to showing up on time (or at all) ignores the psychological gap between white and black "time sense." Whites live more for the future, because they have a future; blacks for the present,

'How Could They Do This To Me?'

"HOW COULD THEY do this to me?" Alexander Dubcek, the Czechoslovak leader, is said to have cried in dismay on hearing of the Soviet-led invasion of his country. "I have devoted my whole life to cooperation with the Soviet Union. This is my own profound personal tragedy."

But not his tragedy alone. It is the tragedy of everyone who has tried to "cooperate" with the Soviet Union, or "build bridges" to it, but has fallen short of complete subservience and submission.

It is deeply ironic that the Russian Communists were able to work exactly the same trick against the Czechoslovaks in 1968 that they had worked against the Hungarians 32 years before, even to the timetable.

On Oct. 23, 1956, Hungarian discontent exploded. University students organized a demonstration of sympathy for Poland and read out demands for the introduction of genuine democracy and the cessation of Soviet dictation and exploitation. Huge crowds joined them. Soviet troops fired on the crowds.

AS POPULAR PRESSURE increased and armed resistance became more organized, the Russians appeared more conciliatory. On Oct. 27 the Soviet army in fact evacuated the capital. The Hungarian democratic parties were jubilant. But the Soviet armies had withdrawn only to allow time for reinforcements to mass behind the frontiers. They re-entered Hungary on Oct. 30, fanning out to surround the capital.

Imre Nagy, the Hungarian premier, cabled to the United Nations announcing the withdrawal of Hungary from the Warsaw Treaty Organization. He asked for help, and for recognition of Hungary as a neutral state under international protection. But the help never came. On Nov. 4 the Soviet troops entered the capital.

Heavy fighting went on for a fortnight. For weeks Hungary was paralyzed by a general strike. But it was all to no avail. Nagy and others were executed.

Everyone will be glad to know, however, that the United Nations passed several resolutions condemning Soviet intervention.

The parallel with events of the last few weeks in Czechoslovakia is startling. Once more Russian troops withdrew. Once more the Russian leaders appeared to give in gracefully and got themselves photographed smiling, shaking hands with the Czech leaders and holding up bouquets of flowers, but again only to deceive the Czechs into letting down their guard so they could be conquered by complete surprise.

The treaties and solemn agreements cynically broken by the Soviets are too numerous to list. Yet our American leaders and appeasers seem incapable of learning from experience. Ever since the beginning of his Administration, President Johnson has been busily "building bridges" to the Soviet Union, trying to develop "East-West trade" and triumphantly proposing, negotiating and signing new disarmament treaties and other agreements.

ALL THIS HAS not been nearly enough for Vice President Humphrey, who as late as July 12 made headlines by demanding "a shift from policies of confrontation and containment to policies of reconciliation and peaceful engagement." The most important area of reconciliation," he emphasized, "is that of East-West relations," particularly including relations with the Soviet Union.

This constant courtship of the Soviet Union, these rapprochements, appeasements, reconciliations, bridges, agreements, treaties are not merely futile. They are positive acts of self-deception. They restrict our own freedom of action, but do not in the least restrict the actions of the Soviet leaders, who sign treaties chiefly to lull others into letting down their guard. This we seem only too happy to do. We call it "relaxing tensions."

"Men are so simple," wrote Machiavelli, "and so subject to present necessities that he who seeks to deceive will always find someone who will allow himself to be deceived."

BERRY'S WORLD

MEDICINE AND YOU

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A BRITISH researcher speculates that aspirin may be able to curb eye complications in diabetics.

The speculation stems from the following observation by Dr. H. Keen of Guy's Hospital in London: There appears to be less eye trouble among diabetics who also are victims of rheumatoid arthritis.

Dr. Keen thinks that perhaps this is because arthritis take so much aspirin for their condition.

No scientific study has yet been made of this observation.

SEVERAL CASES of blood malignancies occurring nearly simultaneously in patients and their pets have been turned up by a researcher with the National Cancer Institute.

Yet there is no proof that the diseases are in any way related, says the researcher, Dr. Michael V. Viola.

One can only speculate that either the patient or the pet was responsible for conveying the disease to the other — or that both were exposed to the same cancer-causing substance.

THE SOOT AND ASH found in the air of America's industrial cities may contribute to the increased incidence of stomach cancer in older residents.

A two-year study conducted by State University of New York at Buffalo shows that stomach-cancer deaths among persons aged 50-69 were almost double in areas where a certain type of air pollution was greatest. The pollution was that marked by suspension of large particles of various substances.

Researchers say that the Buffalo death pattern dovetails with earlier studies in Nashville, Tenn., and in England.

The mechanism by which larger particles (such as those from soft coal) could prove a cause of cancer of the stomach and not of breathing organs is not clear.

The report is in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

GEORGE ROBESON

'We Strike at 10 a.m., Local Time, Comrade'

ALL THE SIRENS sounded in the regular last-Friday-of-the-month Civil Defense warning system test, I'm told. That disappointed a number of local residents who make a constructive hobby out of listening for the 10 a.m. wail.

The citizens have been asked to call City Hall's Department of Emergency Preparedness if a siren usually heard at that time is unheard. Some people can hardly wait to call. One woman has called twice complaining that the siren at the foot of Alamitos Avenue near Ocean Boulevard didn't go off. Nothing makes her madder than missing her familiar siren. And she's right, it's a bum siren. It was repaired between her first call and her second, but still ran into trouble. She didn't call Friday, so the residents of the classy Ocean Boulevard high-rise apartment buildings are protected from surprise holocaust again.

Another woman in the north side of town complains that low-flying aircraft makes so much noise over her house that she can't hear the sirens. There's a typically clever enemy trick for you — sending private planes on a buzz-run over the siren installations.

THE MOST COMMON complaint about the city's 40 sirens is that they all go off at the same time on the same day of the week each month, thus affording an enemy a perfect opportunity to sneak in a punch while everyone is snipping coffee and wishing the sirens would quit. It's the same way all over Los Angeles County. This would be a valid argument, Civil Defense bosses agree, if an enemy went to war only with Los Angeles County and left the rest of the country alone. The only enemy at war with Los Angeles County is San Francisco, which has yet to test its first thermonuclear device.

On the other hand, 10 a.m. in Los Angeles is noon in Chicago and 1 p.m. in New York and Washington, which pretty well catches everybody either on a coffee-break or a long lunch-hour. If any hostile foreign power is considering the L.A. County siren tests as an ideal moment for the end of the world, Civil Defense people would do well to build bomb-shelters under all the cafeterias in the country.

At any rate, you're supposed to call the city's Civil Defense people when you don't hear the siren at the appointed time, not when you do. Personally, I always dive under the desk when it goes off. Better safe than sorry, my mother always said.

SIRENS ARE BLOWING in Signal Hill, too, but there's no need for alarm. It's only the two political factions warning the populace about each other. The factions are represented by two weekly newspapers: the Signal Hill Tribune and the Signal Hill Beacon and Green Sheet.

The Tribune claims that the Beacon controls two City Councilmen. The Beacon claims that the Tribune controls three city councilmen. The Tribune charges that the Beacon seeks to tear the city asunder by discrediting the Mayor, the Police Chief, and the editor of the Tribune, and mentions "legalized gambling" as a backstairs motive. The Beacon claims that the Tribune seeks to preserve an outmoded status quo and "government by family." A new member of the Signal Hill City Council is Sandra Miller, editor and publisher of the Beacon.

But the fight seems to boil down to a standoff between H. Fred Harris, the Tribune's editor, and Floyd Jones, who writes a column in the Beacon. They engaged in some sort of pushy and-shove match at a recent City Council meeting.

In their newspapers, each accused the other of resorting to physical violence, and each deplored the incident.

Bravo for them, I say. Until recently, the only news from Signal Hill was a fire.

SEN. SOAPER SAYS

ONE CONSOLATION about the population explosion is that, for whatever it's worth, we may soon have posterity outnumbered.

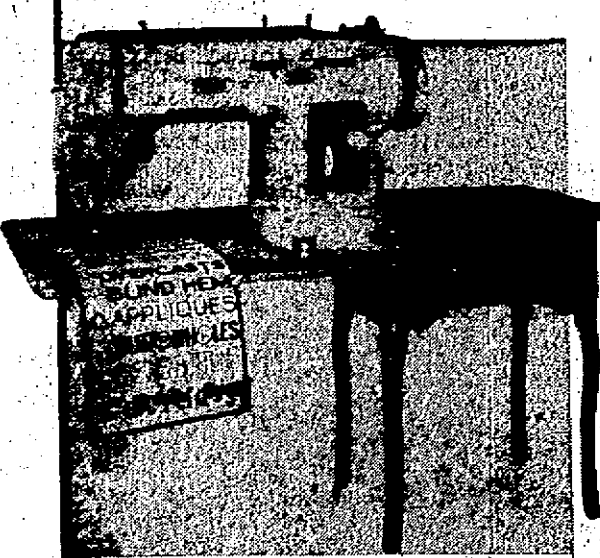

COMMUNISM IS terrible. But at least the high-jacked airliner coming into Havana doesn't have to circle the field for two hours as it might have to do in the capitalistic states.

AN ITEM IN THE news tells us that bumblebees are afraid of alfalfa blossoms. Well, we all have our hang-ups.

SOME SCIENTIFIC studies, under attack by politicians, sound nutty but really make sense, which is more than can be said for some politicians.

Columnists on the opinion polls are chosen to represent diverse viewpoints and do not necessarily reflect the editorial position of this newspaper.

Labor's 1968 Losses Balance Gains

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—B.5

more willing than most to call in nonunion workers in labor disputes.

As a result, says Jack Cox, strikes in this area tend to be more bitter than most, and sometimes even bloody.

If the unions have fared badly at the hands of Hearst, labor leaders have found some solace in the growing success of the farm workers' boycott of California table grapes.

With the grape growers definitely feeling the pinch of the boycott, labor is hopeful producers will be persuaded soon to sit down and negotiate a collective bargaining contract with the farm workers union.

Union leaders are also happy with recent Southland contract settlements.

The United Auto Workers' 38-month contract with Douglas Aircraft, for example, gives Douglas workers $1 an hour in wages and benefits over the life of the contract.

There were fairly good gains, too, in the retail trades, in other manufacturing industries and in the building trades, where, according to Clarence B. Gariss, executive secretary of the Long Beach Building Trades Council, "nobody is working for less than $5 an hour."

Many contracts, moreover, contain provisions for a wide range of medical, dental and optical services — most of them at little or no cost to the union member and his family.

WITH SOME exceptions — for example, the recent falling out between the United Auto Workers and the International Association of Machinists — relations between the unions in Southern California have greatly improved. And the jurisdictional strife of earlier years appears to be giving way to an era of relative amity.

Also pleasing to labor's leadership here is the rising militancy of government and professional workers. In Long Beach, the Teamsters Union continues to organize city employees, while the local unit of the County Social Workers Union appears to have come to live recently after a long period of inactivity.

Notwithstanding the favorable trends, though, a few labor officials aren't sure that labor's bubble won't burst after the November elections.

BILL PIERCY of the longshoremen's union, just back from Chicago as an alternate in the California Democratic delegation, concedes labor "has had it pretty good" while the Democrats have been in power.

But he's not at all convinced the Republicans won't win the White House in November, along with the two houses and a host of state legislatures.

"Maybe I'm a pessimist," he said, "but I see tough times ahead for labor." Based on conversations with four U.S. Senators and five congressmen, as well as other influential Democrats, Piercy is certain the Republicans will launch an effort to get a national right-to-work law passed next year. Barring that he sees a major effort in a large number of states to get state right-to-work statutes enacted.

For labor, November will be a pivotal month in the year ahead.

Culture Report Due on Channel Islands

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

A primitive culture existed on Santa Rosa Island, one of the Channel Islands group, as long as 30,000 years ago, Dr. Charles Rozaire will tell the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society at a meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Bowers Museum, Santa Ana.

He will detail explorations of the Channel Islands for data seeking to establish the pattern of habitation and the cultural characteristics of Indians of various coastal tribes.

ARTIFACTS found on the islands indicate, he said, that each island had its own tribes and that they developed their own cultures.

There is evidence that there were many villages and campsites on these islands, he said, and that there was a large population.

The task is to date the materials recovered, and learn what cultural characteristics separated the peoples from those of other islands, and from the mainland, Dr. Rozaire explained.

Now with the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History, Dr. Rozaire formerly was with the Southwest Museum in Los Angeles and previously taught at UCLA.

He discovered a cremation site on San Nicolas Island, and with help of the radiocarbon dating method, determined that it was in use 2,000 years ago. However, cremation was not widespread on the islands, he believes.

Studies of basketry and weaving is well established, he said. It determined that native grasses were used until land supplies were exhausted; then the Indians turned to the sea for sea weeds and grasses. Tribes on five islands had similar methods of weaving as long as 4,000 years ago, he said.

VARIOUS techniques in weaving and styles in design have been discovered among the makers of baskets and cloth, and Dr. Rozaire said that this points up the need for more study to put these "in their proper place and time."

Even various shapes and differences in the kinds of shells used on the various islands will eventually indicate a time sequence to the anthropologist, he said.

Sybil Reed—Happy, Witty Actress Without a Stage

"So you don't like my cooking, huh?" she snaps. Then — grinning, her eyes twinkling — "See if I ever slave all day over a hot lemon for you again."

Thus, Sybil Reed — a former actress who insists she was woefully inadequate in playhouse comedy, but who leaves one with the sneaking suspicion she may be funnier behind the desk than any of the actors on the stage.

Her sense of humor is a natural, not forced. It springs from her buoyantly optimistic view of life, from her enjoyment of what she is doing, not from a conscious desire to be funny.

Ask her where she was born, and she'll say, "Pass Christian, Mississippi." Then she'll laugh. "Not really. I just heard that name last week from a man born in New Orleans, and I thought it sounded beautiful."

"Besides, I don't have a birth certificate, so I can pick and choose my birthplace from week to week."

How long has she been married?

"I don't know. All my life, I think. I came into the world married and a size 14."

How did she get involved in civic life?

"I WAS ASKED to take a few positions, and I had enough brains—barely—to accept."

That's not quite accurate.

Mrs. Reed — for the record, born in Denver, married to Charles Reed in 1929 — started helping the Girl Scouts, the YWCA, the PTA and the Community Chest when her daughter, Diane, started school.

Gradually, she also offered her services to the Family Council, Traveler's Aid, the Alamitos Library, the city recreation commission and the playhouse.

She has been elected president of the recreation commission three times and is now its vice president. She started in the playhouse as an actress and is now the administrator.

"I began here in 1951," she says. "I was talking to a friend from the playhouse one night, about how I'd like to play Miss Tinkham in the play they were going to do, 'Suds in Your Eye'. The next morning, the director called and asked me to read for the part. I thought he was crazy and I told him so."

Mrs. Reed read for the part — and got it — "out of their sheer, unadulterated need," she says. "There was no one else."

As usual, Mrs. Reed is doing herself an injustice. She was not a housewife fresh from the kitchen with a secret, Walter Mitty-like desire to be a stage star.

SHE HAD been interested in drama since she went to Poly High School, she had gone to night drama classes after graduation, and, in fact, had met her husband in one of those classes.

Her move into Community Playhouse was only natural, and she played in several more productions — including "Bell, Book and Candle" — before shifting from the stage to the front office.

Now she works 10 hours a day, five sometimes six days a week at the playhouse, leaving only her mornings free — for other civic activities, for mothering the countless dozens of youngsters she temporarily "adopts" for a meal or an afternoon or a day . . . and for enjoying life was a zest one would expect of a high school sophomore, not a woman closing in fast — but not reluctantly — on her 60th birthday.

Cycle Gang Leader Faces Assault Charge

Frank W. (Wild Mouse) Rundle, 24, reputed Hessian motorcycle gang leader, faces arraignment Wednesday in the shooting-raid on the apartment of a former New York Golden Gloves boxing champ.

Rundle, who Friday withdrew a plea of guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit murder, was ordered by Santa Ana Superior Court Judge Robert Gardner to be returned to Harbor Municipal Court Wednesday morning.

Rundle is charged with leading a group of Hessians in a retaliation free-for-all against bar bouncer Robert H. Glazier, 30, of Costa Mesa.

Assault and battery charges are pending against three other Hessians: Thomas Hille, 20, of Costa Mesa; Robert L. Harmon, 20, Santa Ana; and Phillip Paul Cerasco, 20, of Newport Beach.

Political Expert Larry O'Brien Learned Trade As a Youngster Helping Father

New York Times Service
As a young boy in Springfield, Mass., years ago, Lawrence Francis O'Brien used to tag along with his father, a hotel keeper, on his door-to-door rounds to canvass the Democratic voters.

"The votes are there if we can only get them out," the father would say.

Today, with his double selection as Democratic National Chairman and campaign manager, it became once again the task of an O'Brien to get out the votes — this time for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

"It is hardly an unusual undertaking for the 51-year old, bandy-haired O'Brien. He was a director of John F. Kennedy's campaigns in Massachusetts for the Senate in 1952 and 1958, director of organizations for the Kennedy-Johnson national campaign in 1960 and manager of the Johnson-Humphrey campaign in 1964.

AND FEW would deny that he has a knack for the job. Take the 1952 Kennedy Senate campaign, for example. When 1,800 volunteers poured into the Kennedy headquarters looking for something to do, no one could figure out how to harness their energies.

O'Brien, recalling that 260,000 voters had signed the Kennedy nominating petitions, put the 1,800 volunteers to work writing thank-you notes to all 260,000.

One brief biography of O'Brien (born July 17, 1917, Springfield, graduated from Northeastern University) lists his profession as "real estate and public relations man."

But it is really politics and political organization. "If I have any talent it's in organizing a campaign," he has said.

Friends describe him as likeable, methodical, often smiling. They say that he is generally even tempered but occasionally comes across as a tough Irish politician when he has to.

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN
An Early Start

With John F. Kennedy in the White House in 1961, O'Brien became a member of the Irish Mafia — a special assistant to the President in charge of congressional relations. It was O'Brien's job to maneuver the President's legislative programs through a sometimes balky Congress — first for President Kennedy and then the "great society" programs of Lyndon B. Johnson after the Kennedy assassination in 1963. He was regarded as one of the most effective White House lobbyists on Capitol Hill in recent memory.

AT THE end of the 1965 session, O'Brien reportedly was ready to leave his job. But one day Johnson called him in and, as O'Brien has recalled it: "The President was looking at the news ticker when I went in, so I said: 'What is it, good news or bad?' He said: 'Bad news, Larry, you're going to have to leave the White House.' There was a pause, then the President smiled and added, 'To be my postmaster general.'"

Some politicians believe that Johnson never adequately used O'Brien's political talent. But with Johnson's announcement March 31 that he would not seek re-election, O'Brien was torn. He could not stay out of the campaign. Yet which candidate should he join? He was a long-time friend of both Humphrey and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

But the ties with the Kennedys were too strong and O'Brien joined the New York senator's effort as one of the managers of the presidential primary campaign.

AFTER KENNEDY'S assassination in Los Angeles last June 5, O'Brien shifted to the Humphrey camp as a coordinator of the successful campaign which culminated in the presidential nomination for Humphrey last Wednesday night.

O'Brien had insisted all through the campaign that he would work only through the convention. The O'Briens, who have one son, have little financial wealth. O'Brien had told friends that he wanted to write a book on his political experiences and that he wanted to return to private life to build up some financial security.

Japan Goal at 'Pearl' Sink Ships

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The primary target of Japanese bombers on Dec. 7, 1941, was not Pearl Harbor but U.S. carriers, says one of the chief planners of the attack.

"The U.S. carriers were out of Pearl Harbor on that day," Minoru Genda said Sunday. "It was very fortunate for you, not for us."

Genda was an air force commander and staff officer in charge of planning for Vice Adm. Chuichi Nagumo, who commanded the Japanese forces that attacked Pearl Harbor.

GENDA TOURED a studio at 20th Century Fox Corp. where a model of the Japanese fleet is being built for a motion picture.

A member of the upper house of the Diet, Japan's legislative body, he was en route to a parliamentary conference in Peju.

In talking with newsmen about Pearl Harbor, Genda said "It was my personal opinion that we should have attacked more than once, but Adm. Narumo decided against it. I do not know why he did that."

"The main thing was to attack and destroy the carriers, not Pearl Harbor."

Torrance Girl Wins National Hula Hoop Meet

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Marilou Jones, only 11 years old, held the national championship Sunday.

Marilou, a fifth grader from Torrance, beat out Leslie Feaster, also 11, of Philadelphia, with an astonishing display of the Hip 'n Flip, Wrap The Mummy, The Stork, The Buzzard, Double Trouble and the Free Form Movement—her own concoction.

The national championship of what?

Don't look now and maybe it will go away again but — the hula hoop kids from 300 cities and towns were originally in the contest.

Coed Kills Herself Over McCarthy Loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 22-year-old college coed who had been active in anti-Vietnam war demonstrations committed suicide by taking an overdose of drugs because she was despondent over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's failure to win the democratic presidential nomination, police said Sunday.

Minna Gross, a senior at New York University from West Hartford, Conn., was found lying face down, fully clothed, on her bed at the International House student center near Columbia University shortly before midnight Saturday.

Scholarly sleuth unearths treasure

By ELISE EMERY

As any detective story fan knows, the fresher the clues, the swifter is the solving of a mystery.

But when the clues are nearly 400 years old, it takes an extraordinary sleuth to unearth them, then fit the jigsaw pieces into a tightly constructed solution which will satisfy scholarly skeptics.

This Dr. Mary Mahl has done.

"By chance, a rainstorm, insomnia, a nagging memory and 99 per cent perspiration," said the associate professor at USC.

"By meticulous scholarship," declared Dr. R. W. Hunt, keeper of Western manuscripts at the Bodleian Library of Oxford University.

Dr. Mahl's challenge was to authenticate her discovery of one of the treasures of English literature, a 1585 handwritten manuscript of Sir Philip Sidney's "Defence of Poesy."

She told details of her search at a tea given in her honor at the home of Mrs. Harold G. Kaiser, 4612 Greenmeadow Road, co-hosted by Mrs. Doris Specht of Seal Beach, Mrs. Ruth Alexander of Gardena and Mrs. Virginia Wynn of Redondo Beach.

Guests were members of area chapters of Phi Delta Gamma, national fraternity for graduate women. The organization this year awarded its first Study Grant to Dr. Mahl, member of Omicron Chapter at USC.

"THIS 16TH century essay is the first bit of literary criticism in the English language," explained the sunny, exuberant professor, blue eyes sparkling. "It provides the first history of poetry from the time of the ancient Greeks to Sidney's own day."

"Until I began unraveling this mystery, I had no idea that Sidney was considered so great in his own time. He lived during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I. Young, romantic, handsome, he was considered the ideal Renaissance man. When he died from a battle wound in 1586, he was only 32. His death had the impact in the 16th century that John F. Kennedy's had in the 20th century."

But Sir Philip Sidney was of no particular concern to Dr. Mahl in the summer of 1960. In England to do research for her doctorate, she ducked through a door during a sudden rainstorm in Norwich, and was in the library. She vaguely remembered reading that a Norfolk county library had a commonplace book—a glorified scrapbook—kept by an 18th century historian, Francis Blomefield. This might contain information which she needed.

The card catalogue listed the Blomefield book and, after a three hour search, the librarian found it, long forgotten, in the basement.

LATER that year, Dr. Mahl finished her treatise to earn her Ph.D. from New York University and, not long afterward, she came to USC.

One night in 1966, six years after her find in Norwich, Dr. Mahl was unable to sleep. Memory of the commonplace book drifted through her mind—a memory with nagging, worrisome overtones of something familiar but undefined. Finally, at 3 a.m. she wrote to the librarian at Norwich asking for a microfilm of the book.

It arrived two months later. It was "A Treatise of Horsemanship" in the handwriting of a professional scribe.

"The minute I read the first words, I knew it was Sir Philip's 'Defence of Poesy.' I thought, 'People like me don't make discoveries like this!'"

It was easy to see why the manuscript on poetry had lain hidden through the centuries. In the commonplace book, it was incorrectly indexed under "Horsemanship."

Proof had to wait until Dr. Mahl's sabbatical in 1967 when she returned to England. Scrutinized by experts, the manuscript was subjected to Carbon 14 and other tests. Dr. Allan Stevenson, the British Museum's expert on papers, dated it "no later than 1585."

THE EARLIEST previously known versions, both incomplete, were printed in 1595. The Norwich manuscript couldn't have been copied from them.

When Dr. William A. Ringler, the top authority on Sidney, examined the evidence, he exclaimed, "This has to be the earliest!"

Though the manuscript was authenticated, mystery remained. How did the library get it? No record of acquisitions had been kept before 1956.

Patiently, the professor traced ownership of the book after Blomefield's death, but the trail ended with a London bookseller. The only clue was an ornate bookplate of John Borthwick of Crookston. That title became extinct in 1910.

By chance, in the London Library, Dr. Mahl found a just-published book listing titles. In it was the Borthwick which had been reactivated but not previously recorded.

Off went a letter to the 13th Lord Borthwick in Edinburgh. "Yes," he replied, "the book was purchased by my family in the early 1800s and was in the Borthwick possession until it was sold with other items after the war to pay death duties." He had no knowledge of the buyer.

SO DR. MAHL checked catalogues of Sotheby's, the famous auction house. In one was notice of a medieval manuscript sale which ended with this sentence, "At the sale of the Borthwick manuscripts 3 June, 1946, the Blomefield commonplace book was sold for 22 pounds to Bernard Quaritch, antique book dealer of London."

Quaritch had bought the book for the Norwich library.

"So I had come full circle," smiled Dr. Mahl.

In tribute to her scholarship, the illustrious Renaissance English Text Society asked for the privilege of publishing a facsimile edition of the "Defence of Poesy" with an introduction by Dr. Mahl.

On a return trip to England this spring, she was able to prove that Blomefield and William Perry, a Sidney descendant, had an appointment to meet, thus solving the riddle of how Blomefield acquired the manuscript.

"There are so many things in England that need research," she said eagerly. "There are tremendous collections that are untouched. The English don't even know what treasures are there, waiting to be brought to light!"

POLITICKING TEACHER, Marcella Robinson gave up elementary world of primers and chalk for sophisticated atmosphere of presidential campaigning for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller this summer.

—Photos by KENT HENDERSON

classroom for political arena

By Pat McDonnell

"What did you do this summer?"

Anyone asking the customary back-to-school of Marcella Robinson is in for an earful.

The reason? The svelte, blonde Newport Beach teacher has spent her summer as social secretary for the national co-chairman of "People for Rockefeller."

Highlights of her whirlwind five weeks in the Rockefeller camp were recalled by Miss Robinson in the 5420 Oleta St. home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Robinson.

WHAT MAKES AN elementary teacher of 22 years trade primers and chalk for appointment books and social registers?

"The charm and magnetism of the person I was working for," she replied.

"Last June a mutual friend told me Mrs. Thomas W. (Joan) Braden—one of the leading California figures in the RFK's California campaign—had agreed to work for the GOP presidential nomination of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller."

"She needed a social secretary. My friend thought I'd fit the bill."

"I told him I'm a school teacher, not a glorified maid, but he insisted I meet Joan Braden."

Ten minutes after meeting her, I was ready to break my summer school teaching contract, leave my home in Newport and join her in Manhattan.

Miss Robinson arrived June 29 in New York. There she shared a two-bedroom apartment off Fifth Avenue with her employer.

"I'd only been to New York once before. 'To live in sumptuous quarters, handle details for TV and press interviews and get acquainted with political celebrities like Stewart Alsop, Jacob Javits, Arthur Schlesinger and Frank Mankiewicz was quite an experience.'"

DUTIES?

"I screened phone calls, made all plane reservations, scheduled interviews, did her personal shopping and picked up loose ends when commitments were broken."

"It's surprising how many details are involved just to make sure luggage is picked up and delivered or to arrange for limousine service."

"Some days Mrs. Braden would have three press interviews. She nearly always appeared on the daily TV news. No one was more surprised than she was over what a hot news item she was in the East."

"We reasoned it was because she was a prominent Democrat with close ties to the Kennedys who had switched to the Rockefeller camp."

WHY DID she switch?

"The Bradens friendship with Nelson Rockefeller dates to the late '30s for Mr. Braden who was a Dartmouth classmate of the governor. Mrs. Braden's first job out of college was for Rockefeller, who introduced them."

"In 1960, Mr. Braden, former Oceanside Blade Tribune publisher, & state superintendent of education, headed the Kennedy campaign in California. Mrs. Braden directed the "Women for Kennedy" drive on the national level."

"The Braden family were guests of the Kennedys on their first Christmas in the White House. Mrs. Braden accompanied Jacqueline Kennedy on her 1962 tour of India."

"It was Mrs. Braden who met Mrs. Kennedy June 6 at Los Angeles International when she flew here to the bedside of the senator."

"When she was in Washington D.C. for the funeral, Gov. Rockefeller asked her to consider working for his nomination. The first thing she did was write to the Kennedys, explaining her reasons for supporting a GOP candidate."

"IT WAS rather strange to see prominent Democrats and Republicans conversing at our apartment she recalled. "There never were arguments, but then they were either liberal Republicans or moderate Democrats."

"Many were Robert Kennedy supporters who had been with the senator just as Mrs. Braden had during the California campaign. There was a certain closeness among the Kennedy supporters who had been in Los Angeles."

"One of those was Frank Mankiewicz, Robert Kennedy's former press secretary. He advised Mrs. Braden as a personal friend, but never officially."

"In the case of GOP strategists—whenever they got down to 'tactics' I discreetly left the room."

HOW DID she adjust to her Girl-Friday role?

"I'm not too politically oriented. The first few times I met Gen. James Gavin I called him Gen. Davin."

"Another time I opened a checking account for Mrs. Braden, then forgot where the bank was. I was scared to admit it. Finally, I spent an entire afternoon going from one Chase Manhattan bank to the next until I found the right one."

The tanned, chic sophisticate giggled as she recalled the time she crumpled the fender of a rented car.

"I could hardly wait to return the car to the Avis people and tell them where I'd had the accident. That was the weekend I'd accompanied Mrs. Braden to Tarrytown."

"We stayed at the guest house of John Rockefeller's Pocantico ranch. That weekend would have been payment enough for my five weeks' work."

Cuthers-Young

St. Cornelius Catholic Church was setting for Saturday nuptials uniting Vicki Kay Young and Tim Jay Cuthers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin J. Cuthers, 5223 Walkerton St.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Young, 5474 Garford St., wore a gown of Chantilly lace and candlelight satin.

Nancy Carol Fadler was maid of honor. Linda Ann Goodwyn, Diana Gwen Young, Sandra Jean Warner and Vicki Lynn Taber were bridesmaids. Carrie Cochran was flower girl.

Stan W. Bassett was best man. Ushers were Carl Halquist, James White and Larry Bassett. Mark Anthony Taber was ring bearer.

After a church reception, the newlyweds departed on a trip to New Mexico.

Cupp-Level

St. John's Lutheran Church was the setting for the Friday wedding of Alice Jayne Level, daughter of Harold Level, 6508 Orange Ave., and Mrs. Marilyn Level, also of Long Beach, and Donald Paul Cupp, son of Mrs. Don Johnson, 705 E. 60th St.

She was attended by Mrs. Dean Van Hoosen, matron of honor; Mrs. James Batley and Dana and Sheri Walker, bridesmaids.

Dean Van Hoosen was best man; James Batley, Rex Level, brother of the bride, and Rick Giffin were ushers.

A reception at American Legion Hall honored the wedded pair. They will honeymoon at Santa Barbara.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cupp are graduates of Jordan High School, where she was a Phi Delta.

Woodfin-Orr

More than 300 guests witnessed Friday nuptials in Bethany Baptist Church uniting Karen Lee Orr and Robert Lee Woodfin.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Orr of Westminster are parents of the bride. Charlene Orr and Mrs. John Woodfin were maid and matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Ann Powell, Mrs. John Watson, Kathy Everett and Annabelle Biedbach. Cynthia Wheaton was flower girl.

David Woodfin was best man for his brother. Ushers were Timothy Smith, James Woodfin, John Woodfin, Mark Landmon and Charles Tedrick. Ronald Orr was ring bearer.

A reception followed in the church Fireside Room.

Mrs. Woodfin is an alumna of California State College, Long Beach, and affiliated with Alpha Delta Chi sorority. Her husband was graduated from Wayne State University.

WILD WAVES SAY

When they finally had apartment 'warming,' it had triple meaning

By JOLA MASTERSON
Society Editor

FOR FIVE months, Lou and Ray Griffiths, who moved to a lovely new apartment in Cypress last March, have intended to have an apartment-warming party. But things like Lou being involved in a car wreck and the wedding of their daughter, Shelley, have kept them postponing it.

But finally they had their open house and it had a three-fold purpose. Son Raleigh and wife, Joanie, arrived from Cherry Point, N.C. He's en route to Vietnam and is a 1st Lt. in the Marine Corps as a radar intelligence operator. So the cocktail party was a hail and farewell for him, see the new apartment, and meet Shelley's new husband, Denny McFarland, affair.

Among those invited were Bob and Pat Zieg and daughter, Julie, Fred and Earnestine Lugenbehl and son and daughter-in-law, Boyd and Bonnie Lugenbehl, Gene and Rose Bishop, Ken Nelson, Ann Millie, Fred and Jo Middough, Bill and Eloise Dickey, John and Fran Swanson.

Others who wished Raleigh well (he also will serve as a jet copilot and will be leaving Sept. 11) were Jim and LaVerne Maddux, their daughter, and her husband, Carol Ann, and Jim Lockyer, Melba Clark, Webb and La Rae Curtis, Lou and Edith Hendley, Dan and Shelly McMuray, Stuart and Aura Montford, Bob and Judy Hickerson, John and Lil Goerwitz, Les and La Vonna Groom and Ron and Kathy Lamb.

For an apartment, that's quite a crowd. And if lots of other friends hadn't been on vacation, Lou would have invited more.

JUST CALL Joyce and John Coffee "Black Coffee" because they're as tan as their name sounds after two weeks spent in Hawaii. They had both worked at getting tans before they left, so they wouldn't suffer from sunburns in the islands. Now they'll have to fight to keep those healthy-looking bronzed skins.

This was John's first trip and first time Joyce has been back since 1947. The change, of course, was fantastic, because in '47 there were only two large hotels in Honolulu—the Royal Hawaiian and the Moana. Now Waikiki is beginning to look like Manhattan Island.

They spent two days each at Hilo and Kona, two at the Sheraton on Maui, two at Kauai (Kauai Surf) and seven days in Honolulu.

Travel and playmates on tour included Bill and June Duncan, Francis and Dorothy Brockman, Ed and Theresa McManus, Bob and Cecile Le Clair, Rosamaria Montoya, Ralph and Evelyn Jacobson, Jay and Frances Sanford, the Murray Moores and Dave and Dorothy Oliver.

Olson-Lubeck

Roberta Cecilia Lubeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Frank Lubeck of Santa Ana, exchanged wedding vows with Edward Patrick Olson, son of Mrs. Edward Michael Olson, and the late Mr. Olson, 3741 Cerritos Ave., Saturday, in St. Barnabas Catholic Church.

The bride designed her gown of silk peau de sole with cathedral train trimmed in pearl-embroidered lace. In the bridal entourage were her sister Norma Adrian Lubeck, maid of honor; Francine Olson, sister of the bridegroom; Linda Austin, Janice Mowles, bridesmaids; and Jeanne Goodie, flower girl.

Michael Joseph Olson, brother of the bridegroom, was best man; David Stamper, Norman Welch and Peter Quinn, ushers.

Terrace Room of the Petroleum Club was the scene of the reception honoring the newlyweds. After their honeymoon in Northern California, they will reside in Long Beach.

DEAR ABBY

He's jealous of fiancée's doctor

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that has bothered me for a long time and I don't know how to handle it.

The fact is I get very jealous when my fiancée goes to her doctor for a physical examination. Kathy has a very good figure, and you can't tell me that a doctor doesn't enjoy seeing a girl with a good figure. I just can't stand knowing that some other man has seen Kathy undressed.

We plan to get married in a few months, and I don't know how to beat this problem.

It's bad enough right now, but I'm sure it will bug me even more when Kathy has a baby, and he will have to deliver the baby and so forth. Have you any suggestions?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: I could suggest that your fiancée use a woman physician, but it wouldn't "solve" your problem; it would only mask it. Let me assure you that a doctor doesn't "enjoy" one patient any more than another—no matter how "good" her figure is.

So grow up and forget that nonsense. You are jealous over nothing.

DEAR ABBY: How can a man determine whether his wife is a rudder or an anchor? EMELGEE; Lockport, N.Y.

DEAR EMELGEE: If she's guiding his progress, she's a rudder. If she's impeding it, she's an anchor. And any man who depends exclusively on his wife for the former, or allows her to do the latter, should be keelhaunched!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother. Every time I go to the closet to get something to wear, it isn't there. My mother is 20 years older than I am, but she's my size. I think my clothes are too sexy for her, but she doesn't think so. I work hard and buy all my own clothes and she just helps herself to anything she wants. She's not careful with them either. If a button falls off, that's just too bad. She also gets spots on things, and I have to launder them. Warnings don't help. I've tried that a hundred times. I am 25 years old and fed up. Any suggestions?

CLOTHES POOR

DEAR POOR: You can either lock your clothes up or find another place to live.

DEAR ABBY: Yours is the voice of wisdom, mine is the voice of experience.

I have read in your column many letters about friction between the wife and her mother-in-law. You said, if they cannot get along, keep them apart—no matter what the cost. How right you are.

If I felt it unwise financially to maintain two households—one for my widowed mother and one for my wife and children, so I invited my mother to make her home with us.

Constance Ann Grall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grall, 4222 Stanbridge Ave., and Keith Eugene Boudreau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Boudreau, 5418 Lorelei Ave., Lakewood, recited wedding vows Saturday at 12:30 p.m. in St. Cyriacs Catholic Church.

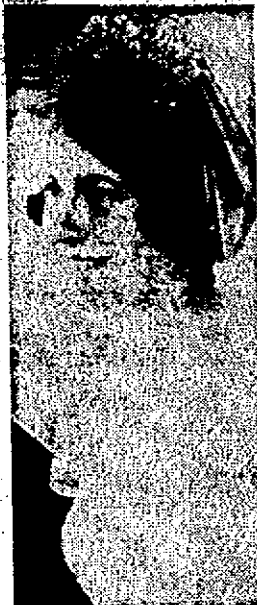

The bride wore a gown of satin-faced peau de sole and Chantilly lace, re-embroidered with ribbonette lace. It was styled with empire bodice and A-line skirt with attached chapel length train.

Mary Jo Kerscher, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Others in the entourage were Gloria Boudreau, sister of the bridegroom, Susan Walker, Barbara Ross and Charlene Ruzek. Mary Ebert was flower girl.

Kenneth Hanson stood as best man. Ushering guests were Lelan Finch, Mark Detrich and Jerry Zevenbergen. Patrick O'Hearn was ring bearer.

The newlyweds both graduated from Lakewood High School and California State College, Long Beach.

A buffet luncheon at Long Beach Elks Club followed the wedding after which the newlyweds departed on a honeymoon trip to Lake Tahoe. They will make their home in Long Beach.

Neat tricks told by needle expert for buttonholes

By PAT TREXLER

Can't you just picture this vividly striped, crocheted afghan enhancing the appearance of your living room, bedroom or den? A variety of pattern stitches are combined to create this heirloom masterpiece, certain to become one of your prized possessions.

Luscious shades of bittersweet, antique gold, lime and pink were used to make the panels which are separated by narrow strips of black. You might choose more subtle shades of blues and greens or bold psychedelic colors. Whatever your choice, this lovely afghan is sure to attract attention wherever it is used.

To obtain directions for crocheting the sampler afghan, send your request for Leaflet No. A-50 with 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, Independent, Press-Telegram, P.O. Box

DEAR PAT: When making buttonholes, what is the best way to cast on the stitches over the bound off stitches of the row below? I usually just twist the yarn over the needles, but this results in a rather messy looking buttonhole.

Mrs. W.M.H., Akron, Ohio.

DEAR MRS. H.: Probably the best way to cast on stitches for buttonholes is to knit or purl them on. That is, insert the tip of the right hand needle into the next stitch on the left hand needle, wrap the yarn around it and pull the yarn through, but do not slip the original stitch off of the left hand needle. Repeat the same step in the next stitch you have just created on the left hand needle until the necessary number of stitches are cast on.

There is a very good way to twist the stitches on the needle that knots the yarn in the same way as when you cast on to begin your work, but this involves hand motions that are very difficult to describe in print. Perhaps a good knitting instructor in your area can show you this method.

Speaking of buttonholes, have you ever tried the "contrasting yarn" method? This type of buttonhole is finished after the completion of your garment.

When you reach the point where a buttonhole is to be made, drop the yarn you have been using and, with a short length of contrasting yarn, work the necessary number of stitches. Slip the stitches which were knitted with the contrast color back onto the left hand needle and knit them again with your main color.

When your garment is completed, thread a yarn needle with yarn, pull the contrasting yarn out carefully. With the threaded yarn needle, weave in and out of the loops of unworked stitches which will result from pulling out the contrast yarn.

As a finishing touch on this and most other types of buttonholes, with tapestry needle and matching yarn, work a buttonhole stitch around each one. If the yarn you are using is heavy, separate the strands and use just a single strand to finish the buttonholes.

When joining seams, it is also a good idea to separate the strands of a bulky yarn for a neater finish.

Luncheon, cards

Golden State Auxiliary 279, Veterans of Foreign Wars, invites the public to a luncheon and card party Tuesday at 11:45 a.m. in Veterans Memorial Building. Ella Owens is chairman. Proceeds will aid the VFW National Home.

Windy City to be home for Loews

Moreland Presbyterian Church in Portland, Ore., was setting for Sunday nuptials uniting Nola Etta Lamkin and David Jonathan Loew, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Loew of Portland.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. E. H. Lamkin, 251 E. Forhan St., and Earl Harold Lamkin, 5555 Cherry Ave. She was attired in a beau de soie gown with fitted lace bodice and skirt of inverted pleats.

Marian Todd was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon Fukumoto, Loretta Stimmel, Joan Lackey and Jeanne Loew.

John Loew was best man for his son. Ushers were Terry Olson, Steven Boldman, Scott Roberts and Craig Roberts.

The newlyweds will honeymoon at Crater Lake, Lassen National Park and Yosemite before arriving in Long Beach to be honored at a second reception Saturday in North Long Beach Community Presbyterian Church.

A first home will be made in Chicago where the bridegroom will have a graduate assistantship at Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University where he is working toward his master's degree.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Lewis and Clark College and affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. She attended Lewis and Clark.

Los Alamitos Legion post given award

Los Alamitos Post 716, American Legion, has received an award from national headquarters in recognition of its child welfare program.

The post has sponsored two Boy Scout troops, two Cub Scout packs and an Explorer troop, as well as a Bobby Sox league, Pony-Colt baseball team and American Legion junior baseball team.

In addition to donating volunteer help and funds to Los Alamitos Youth Center, it has directly aided more than 89 children in the area. More than $2,000 and 11,000 hours of volunteer time has been given by members in the past year.

Rocket Dust

It often takes ingenuity to overcome a small boy's resistance to face washing. One mother finds that a soapy washcloth is accepted with greater alacrity when she refers to dirt and food smears as rocket dust. This gives more dignity and status to cleaning up than the traditional "go wash your face."

Long Beach home awaits Wilsons

More than 400 friends and relatives witnessed Sunday nuptials in Christ Second Baptist Church uniting Barbara Johnson and Ronald Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson, 1867 Myrtle Ave.

Attending the daughter of Louis Harden, 1735 Lemon Ave., and the late Mrs. Harden were:

Mrs. Benjamin Richard, matron of honor; Cynthia Wilson, Mrs. Fred Middleton, Sandra Wayne, Jeanette Croom, Sandra Wayne, bridesmaids; LaShonne and Cassandra Norford, flower girls.

Donald Norford was best man. Ushers were Fred Middleton, Charles Swanson, John Davis, Ronald Alexander and Lee Wayne. Steven Allen was ring bearer.

The couple will live in Long Beach. Both are graduates of Polytechnic High School. The bridegroom attended Long Beach City College.

JACOBY Old bridge buffs just shuffle on

Oswald: "Old duplicate players never die. They just take up rubber bridge."

Jim: "The reverse also holds true. Old rubber bridge players take up duplicate. I suppose you are going to produce a hand played by one of your old friends."

Oswald: "Right as usual. Back in the '30s, Sam Fry Jr. of New York won the Vanderbilt and Spingold Cups in addition to almost everything else in sight."

Today he confines his play to rubber bridge at New York's Regency Whist Club. His bidding is rather old-fashioned but his dummy play remains very, very good. His strong point in the old days was a vivid imagination that enabled him to work out winning plays which others would never visualize.

In today's hand West opened the king of clubs and shifted to the seven of hearts.

Jim: "It would have been much nicer if West had continued clubs, but then you would have no story. Also, I see that four hearts was a far better contract but you can't blame Mr. Fry for missing the heart game. North really should have bid three hearts over South's three diamonds.

Oswald: "Sam played dummy's king of hearts and East dropped the nine. East might have been fooling but Sam did not think so and decided to guard against the actual East-West holdings."

He ruffed a club in his own hand and led a diamond to dummy's king. Then he cashed the ace of diamonds and saw that West would make a trump trick.

He led and ruffed a third club, cashed his king of spades, led a heart to dummy's ace, ruffed the last club and threw West in with the queen of trumps.

Jim: "Very nice. West was forced to lead a spade whereupon Mr. Fry was able to finesse against the queen and discard both his losing hearts."

Beverly Robinson weds Frederick Willgeroth

An evening ceremony Thursday at First Baptist Church united Beverly Ann Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil C. Robinson Jr., 6438 Deleon St., and Carl Frederick Willgeroth Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Frederick Willgeroth of San Marino.

The bride was gown in an empire silk organza with chapel train.

She was attended by Linda Garcia, maid of honor; Cheryl Bronn, Elizabeth Carr, Pamela Long, Sandra Peek, Karol Wahlberg, bridesmaids, and her cousin, Carol Robinson, junior bridesmaid.

Best man was Phillip Gustavson; ushers were Robert Collins, Christopher Ginnold, Steven Lewis, Thomas Semonell and Wallace St. Clair. James Robinson, the bride's cousin, was ring bearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Willgeroth received guests at the Old Ranch Country Club before leaving for their honeymoon in Carmel and San Francisco. They will make their first home in Redondo Beach.

A graduate of Millikan High School, the bride is an alumna of the University of Southern California, where she was a Kappa Kappa Gamma. The bridegroom, a Sigma Chi, has a master's in finance from USC.

MRS. C. F. WILLGEROTH JR.

Change hairdo

If you are planning a switch from miniskirts to midi, make certain you are ready for the change. The current look is one of old-fashioned softness with new-fashioned charm and your hairstyle should reflect this. The word from many leading hairstylists is that the curly "Little Orphan Annie" style will sweep out the ever-popular straight ones. Others favor a midi hairstyle, neither curly nor straight, but a flattering compromise.

Chapman-Dier vows exchanged in Canada

Knox United Church in Vancouver was the setting for the wedding Saturday of Sally Dier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Dier, 2182 Earl Ave., and Michael John Chapman, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Chapman.

Gowned in street-length white lace over taffeta, the bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Donald Hughes as matron of honor. Best man was Gregg Owens.

THE BRIDE is a graduate of Polytechnic High School. She also attended Long Beach City College. An alumnus of Wilson High School, the bridegroom also attended LBCC.

A wedding reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Oliver. The couple will honeymoon in Canada and make their home in Vancouver.

Window thrift

Shades or blinds make good insulators and help keep heat in or out according to the season. In the summer, rooms can be kept cool by drawing the shades early in the day to seal out the sun's heat. In the winter, reverse the process to keep the heat in when the sun is down. You will also protect your draperies by keeping the sun's harshest rays from them.

Miss Class? Check With Computer

By BOB ANDREW
Staff Writer

If a student at the Southern California Regional Occupational Center in Torrance misses a class this fall, he'll have to get a note from his computer.

All attendance records for the center will be processed through a punch-card data-retrieval system developed by the center's data processing class under the guidance of instructor Elaine Holzer.

DATA processing is only one of many vocational subjects taught at the center which serves as a post-high school job-training center for six high school districts in the Torrance-South Bay area. Other subjects range from auto mechanics to electronic assembly.

Business Manager G. Layton Bowman supplied the class with information about the California State Department of Education's attendance accounting requirements under which the center receives average daily attendance payments from the state. From there, it was up to the students to develop a computer system to meet those requirements.

The class developed "flow charts" to trace the route information would take from the teacher, to the computer, the main office and back to the teacher. It also determined how to get all the necessary information — student's name, class and teacher, date, etc. — on to a standard data punch card to be fed into the computer and developed the program allowing the computer to digest the information.

When it came time to program the machine, the class didn't have things quite so easy as scientists who "talk" things over with their computers in Cobol, Fortran and other computer languages.

gured out a wiring diagram and "plugged" a blank computer memory board by connecting hundreds of wires into the appropriate holes among the thousands available.

Haig Marashlian, director of planning and development at the center, explained that the attendance system was designed to be readily adaptable to computerized instructional techniques that are being developed for the center.

"BECAUSE OF the vocational application of our instruction," he said, "much of a student's training comes from the laboratory — whether that be the auto shop or what."

"In order to give the student more hands-on experience in his trade, we want them to have as much 'laboratory' time as possible," Marashlian said.

That's where computer-directed study comes in. The student would attend a lecture or other mass instruction with anywhere from 20 to 50 fellow students, then return to a cubical with a computer terminal for individual testing of his comprehension of the material presented.

If he doesn't understand the lecture sufficiently, the computer may direct him to view videotape A-97 or some other visual aid. Afterward he is tested again. If he passes, he goes to the laboratory to turn theory into practice; if not the computer recommends other training aids.

"This system has two advantages," Marashlian pointed out. "It gives the instructor more time for individual supervision in the laboratory, and it permits each student to proceed at his own pace."

Marashlian said that a student who grasps theory more quickly might be able to complete his 12-month training course in seven or eight months — or at least get his hands on more work experience before he gets the certificate that assures a prospective employer he's ready for the job.

Burton Shoots for Punishing Swim Double

The big names in the Olympic Games men's swimming competition this year are Mark Spitz, Don Schollander and Charles Hickcox.

Among them, they could win as many as 12 gold medals — five in the relays.

Schollander won four gold medals in the 1964 Games at Tokyo and could win three or more this year, while Spitz has been tabbed as the swimmer most likely to be the U.S. hero in the Mexico City Olympics.

Spitz is being figured for five gold medals. But following the performances of Hickcox, from the University of Indiana, the U.S. has another potential winner of five gold medals — only one of which would come in a relay.

Hickcox launched his big bid Friday and Saturday by setting world records in the 200 and 400-meter individual

IN THE VICTORY SWIM

NO RECORDS were set in Sunday's Olympic swimming trials, but nobody minded. All in attendance got to see Indiana's Charles Hickcox, starting above, front, win his third trials final, this time the 100-meter backstroke in 59.7. Ronnie Mills, of Bradford, S.C., above Hickcox, finished second. Right, Santa Clara's Brian Job gulps toward 2:28.95 victory in 200-meter breaststroke. Competition continues today.

Despite his record efforts, Hickcox revealed that his main objective is to win at least one of the backstroke gold medals at Mexico City, hopefully both. "Those are the races I want to win most," he says.

SINCE HE CONSIDERS THE BACKSTROKE to be his best stroke, he feels that he has a good chance to win at least one gold medal even though East Germany's 17-year-old Roland Matthis recently established world marks of 58.4 seconds and 2:07.9 in the 100 and 200 backstroke.

Even if Spitz, Schollander and Hickcox win a dozen gold medals, the swimmer to whom the United States' forces could be the most grateful is Mike Burton, 21-year-old junior from UCLA who turned to swimming to build up torn legs and hips following a boyhood accident when the bike on which he was riding, crashed head-on into a truck.

Burton, if successful as expected in the 1500-meter freestyle trials today and finals on Tuesday, will be attempting one of the most punishing doubles in Olympic swimming — the 400 and 1500.

Those are the distances in which competitors will be the most seriously affected by the high altitude. Indicating the difficulty in competing in such thin air is the observation by Mike that the 1500 likely will be some 20 seconds slower than if it were held at sea level.

Olympic Volleyball Stars Clash in L.B.

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

The U.S. men's and women's volleyball teams will be showcased tonight at Cal State Long Beach to close out phase one of the Olympic Trials.

Coach Harlan Cohen's women's candidates will launch the doubleheader tonight with a three-game intra-squad match starting at 7:30. The men's scrimmage, pitting the leading 18 players in the country, will follow.

Admission is $2. Three of the men's players were members of the 1964 Olympic team which represented the U.S. and finished 9th in the 10-team competition. They are Mike Bright and Bill Griebenow of the Westside Community Center, national champions this year; and Pete Velasco, Hawaii Outrigger Club.

Velasco was at the 1967 Pan-Am Games, along with John Alstrom, Tom Haine and Jon Stanley, also of Outrigger; Bob Clem and Dan Patterson of San Diego State; Smitty Duke of Dallas, and Wink Davenport, Jack Henn, Larry Rundle and Rudy Suwara of Westside.

One big problem after tonight is for Cohen and men's coach Jim Coleman to narrow the teams to 15 for phase two of the training program which begins Wednesday in Lake Tahoe. Later the teams will be cut to 12.

Both teams will reappear in Long Beach Sept. 24 when they play the Japanese national men's and women's squads at the Long Beach Arena.

Ten men's teams again will participate in the Olympics, headed by Russia's defending champions and runnerup Czechoslovakia. Other world powers who have qualified for the games include Tunisia, Brazil, Poland, East Germany, USA, Romania, Japan and host Mexico.

Coleman and his assistant John Lowell have divided the 18 candidates as follows for tonight's match:

Lowells—Tom Haine, Rudy Suwara, Dennis Dugan, Wink Davenport, Butch May, Mike Bright, Smitty Duke, Jack Henn, Bill Clem.

Colemans—John Alstrom, Bob Clem, Bill Griebenow, Jack Janssen, Dan Patterson, Larry Rundle, Jon Stanley, Pete Velasco, Jim Vineyard.

CATHY, WENDY HAILED FOR GYM TRIALS

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

"Am I happy with our team? You bet I am," Vannie Edwards smiled late Saturday night following the women's gymnastic Olympic Trials in the L.B. arena.

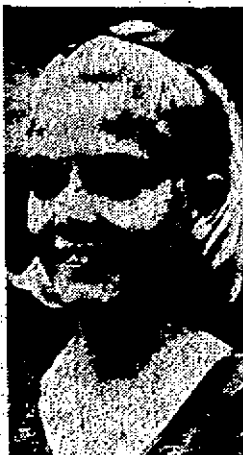

"We have more depth on this club than any we've ever had," added Edwards, who is the team manager.

"In 1964, we had eight good girls competing for six spots on the Olympic team. This time we have 15 good girls and hopefully by 1972 we'll have 40," wished Edwards, who is gymnastics coach at Centenary College of Shreveport, La.

Edwards and U.S. coach Muriel Grossfeld will take 11 girls, the top 10 finishers in the trials, and injured National AAU all-around champion Linda Matheny to a high-altitude camp at Lake Tahoe. The six-girl two alternate Olympic team will be chosen from that group.

Saturday's top 10 finishers were:

1. Joyce Tanac, Seattle, 146.10;
2. Kathy Gleason, Buffalo, N.Y., 143.30;
3. Coleen Mulvihill, Champaign, Ill., 141.60;
4. Mrs. Doris Brause, New Haven, Conn., 138.75;
5. Cathy Rigby, Los Alamitos, 138.65;
6. Cleo Carver, Seattle, 137.55;
7. Terry Spencer, Indianapolis, 137.05;
8. Diane Bolin, Fairmont, Ill., 136.65;

rance, 135.65; 10. Carolyn Pingatore, Seattle, 135.45.

Long Beach SCAT coach Bub Marquette, who also did a quality job as meet director, was delighted with the performances of his pupils, Miss Rigby and Miss Cluff.

"Cathy and Wendy are both about three years ahead of themselves," Marquette reported. "But I think doing so well in the trials was the boost they both needed."

"It's nice to have youngsters like Cathy (15) and Wendy (16) on the team," added Edwards. "We're going to Mexico to win medals, but if we can't do that, we'd like to win the crowd."

"Cathy and Wendy are not only fine gymnasts, they're crowd stealers."

The two super-SCATS had to be at their best to steal Saturday night's crowd, especially those that paid $4.50 to sit on the Arena level.

They spent at least 30 per cent of the evening studying the backs of cameramen filming the function for ABC's Wide World of Sports. For those that were wondering what was going on in front of those backs, the show is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 28.

Despite that inconvenience, Marquette's show was entertaining.

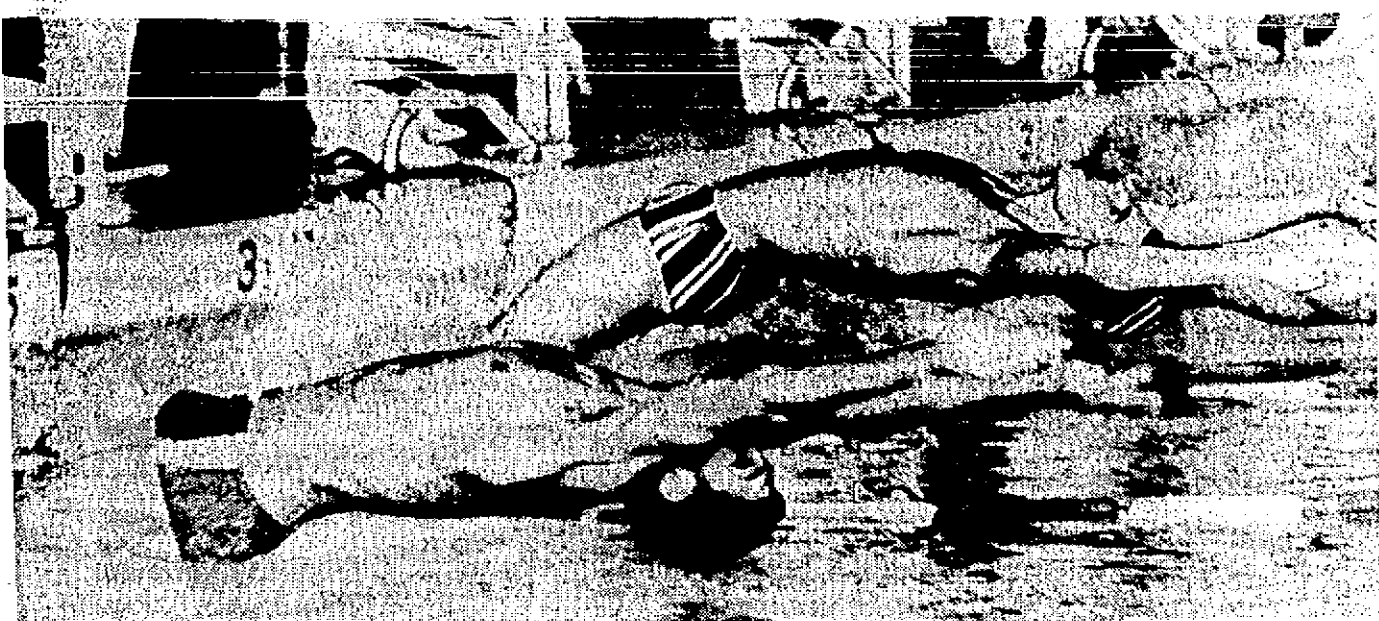

"Our girls have always been entertaining," Edwards smiles, "Now they are good, too."

Shucks, No Swim Records Broken

Hickcox Captures Third Trials Win

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

A strange thing happened at the Olympic Games trials in swimming Sunday night at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool.

Not a record was broken. Still, the times were terrific and so was the competition.

In each race the finish was so close that the crowd roared, waving applause that threatened the well-being of the windows. Each of the winners maintained that he was swimming to win a place on the Olympic team, not swimming for a record.

Most spectacular performance was turned in by Mark Spitz, 18-year-old from Santa Clara who will major in biology at Cal State Long Beach this fall. Spitz was favored to win the 200-meter butterfly, but he looked more like an also-ran than an Olympian until only 25 meters remained.

John Ferris of Stanford set such a blistering pace that the water almost came to a boil. He led by a yard at the quarter pole, a length at the half, and still maintained what seemed a comfortable body advantage with only 50 meters remaining.

But halfway down the stretch Spitz accelerated into third, into second, and almost running over the water, into the lead.

Spitz was credited with 2:05.84, only a stroke or two shy of his world record of 2:05.7. Ferris was second in 2:06.17, 1964 Olympian Carl Robie third in 2:07.27.

"I wasn't worried," smiled Spitz (comment from Robie: "Oh, c'mon!"). "I turned for that last 50. I knew I wasn't out of it. I was going pretty strong. I don't think I've ever had a faster lap than that last 50."

A little sad at not winning, but happy at joining the Olympic team, Ferris said, "I had a little worry about 'dying.' It's happened before. On that last lap I thought, 'By gosh, maybe I am going to win this one.'"

"I swam my race, not just to beat Mark. I'll probably do it the same way in Mexico City."

Charles Hickcox of Indiana set world records on Friday and Saturday, but Sunday he didn't do a thing — except win.

Halfway through the 100 backstroke eight water whippers were so even that you could have stretched a clothesline across their noses.

At 75 meters it was Hickcox by a neck over Ronnie Mills of Arlington, Texas, and that's the way they finished.

Hickcox's time was 59.7, Mills' 1:00.3, Larry Barbieri of Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia, won the third Olympic ticket to Mexico City in 1:00.7, finishing a fingernail in front of Roy Rivero (1:00.8) of Santa Clara Swim Club.

Roland Matthes of East Germany owns the world record of 58.4, Hickcox's American record is 59.1.

"I want a shot at Matthes."

DEFENSE STACKS UP CHIEFS' POWER-I

Rams Rediscover Ground Game

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

"The halfback pass is a heck of a weapon," Rams' end coach Howard Schnellenberger said in reflecting on Saturday night's surprising 10-point victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

"Tommy (Mason) and Mike (Dennis) both throw it well," Schnellenberger said Sunday while relaxing in his Long Beach home. It was the first day off for the Rams' coaching staff since training camp started nearly two months ago.

Dennis fired the game's only touchdown pass, connecting with Pat Studstill for 12 yards as time ran out. The inter-league skirmish also featured a 101-yard kickoff runback by Ron Smith, and more important, the return of the Rams' defense and running attack.

Smith, who holds the dubious honor of returning the most kickoffs in the NFL for a season (43 in 1966 with Atlanta), took Jan Stenerud's boot one yard deep in the end zone, streaked up the middle, picked up a key block from Tom Mack and was free at the Ram 45.

The Rams' defense, which had given up 77 points in its last two outings, held the high-scoring Chiefs to a single touchdown and three field goals. David Jones appeared in form again as the front four contained the Chiefs' Power-I and fired a fierce rush at Len Dawson the eight times he elected to pass the first half.

The Rams' offensive wall, led by Joe Carollo, Charlie Cowan, Ken Iman, Mack and Joe Seibelli, allowed Henry Dyer, Willie Ellison, Mason and Dennis to power for 143 yards. Elison led the way with 60 and Dyer accounted for 53.

"If we can establish a running game then the secondary has got to get up and play us honest. That's when we can throw the halfback pass," Schnellenberger said. It's the same type play that Paul Hornung gained some notoriety with at Green Bay.

The Rams sustained injuries to Merlin Olsen (sprained foot), Carollo (sprained knee) and Mason (hamstring pull), but all three are expected to be ready for Friday night's preseason finale with San Francisco at the Coliseum.

Olsen and Carollo said they both could have returned to action if necessary. Mason, hobbled by knee injuries in recent years, claimed this was the first time he'd ever had a muscle pull.

Ed Meador said "The fake field goal was an option play. I was to roll out to the right and if there was anyone open I was to throw it. But it looked to me as if three or four Kansas City players were around our two receivers in the end zone, so I just decided I'd better try to run it and see if I could beat them to the corner." His TD in the second quarter mounted the Rams' lead to 15-3.

Mike Garrett, who led the Chiefs' rushing game with 51 yards in 16 carries, said: "I saw too many passes to be upset. Even if the NFL doesn't believe it, this was just an exhibition. I don't feel bad at all. We kept coming back and that was important. Of course, they kept coming back, too."

The Rams open operations at Blair Field today for the remainder of the season.

Raiders Subdues 49ers, 26-19; AFL Cinches Interleague Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two quick Oakland touchdowns in the third quarter broke open a tight game and gave the Raiders a 26-19 exhibition victory Sunday over San Francisco of the National Football League.

The Raiders' triumph, before a near sellout crowd of 57,593 in Kezar Stadium, gave the American Football League the preseason's inter-league series. The AFL leads 11-9 with the NFL Philadelphia-AFL Boston game at Cambridge-Mass., tonight one of three remaining games.

The Raiders-49ers series is even at 1-1. S.F. won 13-10 at Oakland in the 1967 inaugural before 53,000.

Oakland is 3-1 in preseason games, San Francisco 1-4.

San Francisco scored first with the game 7-48 old. John David Crow took George Mira's screen pass and raced 50 yards to a touchdown.

The teams never were closer than 13-12 again.

Two passes from Raiders quarterback Daryle Lamonica to flanker Fred Biletnickoff — the latter was 28 yards and a touchdown — featured the third-quarter pressure.

Four minutes later, Lamonica passed 18 yards to Billy Cannon, who went 35 more to a touchdown.

Kermit Alexander gave the 49ers brief hope when he returned a punt 57 yards to a fourth-quarter touchdown.

The Raiders' second-quarter scores were on a

EARL WILSON Broadway Is Like Saigon

NEW YORK — Boom! Boom! It's like Saigon around here on Broadway.

A lot of buildings are going up in Manhattan now — but across the street from the Americana Hotel, a big hole is going down.

As it goes lower and deeper, with more and more blasting that shakes up the whole Times Square section, we know they're getting ready to shoot up another skyscraper at 7th Av. & 53d and that it will be known as "810 7th Av."

It's part of the move that'll make 53d St. the new crossroads of the world, replacing 42d Street. I've been shouting that in print for a couple of years. Making the point that everything goes north in our megalopolis — including the prices.

"YOU'RE nuts, you must have some real estate there," some letter writers, who have very scant knowledge of newspapermen's salaries, have been needing me.

"I wish I could afford an apartment there," is my rejoinder.

But 53d it's going to be — BOOM — there just went another one — We think you're going to like it here around the Americana, the Hilton, the Ed Sullivan Theater, the City Squire, as those new towers shoot up.

I looked across the other day and saw a guy with a drill and a hard hat sitting nonchalantly along the outside edge of the House of Chan chatting with a fellow leaning over the roof. The House of Chan is not affected by the demolition and reconstruction because Sou Chan has a lease for another 50 years.

THEN I gazed off into a real forest of tall towers ... there's the new Zieg-

Lerner and Loewe Night a Most Pleasant Evening

Hollywood Bowl hosted its first Lerner and Loewe Night way back in 1958. Since then, the event has been celebrated in the mammoth amphitheater more or less annually.

This season's L&L concert was given twice over the past weekend, drawing a respectably large crowd Friday and a really big one Saturday, to hear conductor Roger Wagner, the Bowl Pops Orchestra, and a covey of soloists revive music from "Brigadoon," "Paint Your Wagon," "Gigi," "Camelot," and of course, "My Fair Lady."

Despite the fact that the final part of the program went on longer than seemed necessary, this was a most pleasant evening, one in which enjoyment was shared on both sides of the reflecting pool. As you know, that is not always the case in the Magic Valley.

Roger Wagner must take a good portion of the credit, for he was usually in tight control of the orchestra and his own Choral, and thus was able to give warm cooperation to the five soloists in no less than 24 items from the above-mentioned shows.

Not too surprisingly, his leadership proved least expert in the purely instrumental portions — like the Overture to "Brigadoon" or the Ascot Gavotte — music of no particular difficulty, but music which comes to life only under the hand of a seasoned specialist.

The rapport between the still-youthful, mustachioed choral conductor and his experienced soloists, however, was something special, and illuminated even the most familiar items anew.

Joanna Simon, a super-glamorous mezzo-soprano whose repertory seems to bridge the unbridgeable (Bach to Bizet; Glinka to Loewe), delivered a variety of vocal assignments neatly and with style. Her masculine and musical counterpoint was Bruce Yarnell — he, too, is a young American who seems to specialize in everything — the owner of one of the healthiest and most attractive baritone voices we have heard this year. The bonus in his makeup is an actor's sense of projection.

Michael Evans, one of the early Higgins in the history of "Fair Lady," recreated three scenes from that show. Bill Lee, a veteran of several L&L Nights, contributed four lively songs — particularly a bubbly "Little Bit of Luck" in which he was assisted by veteran choristers Arthur Edwards (the Master Chorale's redoubtable program annotator) and Ed Najera.

The evening's tenor was Carl Olsen, who made the most of his native lyricism and that in Loewe's scores. The Wagner Choral, 42 strong, sang with their usual professionalism, but could have pronounced at least 60 per cent better. Words! Words! Words!

Prof. Claims Sea Won't Aid People

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A noted biologist said Sunday America has more people than it can adequately maintain and looking to the sea for support won't lessen the problem.

"With just two per cent of the world's population, we use roughly one half of all the raw materials consumed on the face of the earth each year," Dr. Paul R. Ehrlich of Stanford University told a congregation at Grace Cathedral.

"Our desperate attempts to increase food yields are promoting soil deterioration and contributing to the poisoning of the ecological systems on which our very survival depends. The more we strive to obtain increased yields in the short run, the smaller the yields are likely to be in the long run."

Ehrlich said all signs point to a reduction of the food yield of the sea in the future.

"Most of the sea is a biological desert with increasing pollution and a no holds barred race to harvest the fish," he said. "The competition to loot the sea of fish creates international incidents."

The exponent of population control and author of a recent book titled "The Population Bomb" said opponents of birth control may be unaware they are helping to increase worldwide death rates.

"Anyone, including Pope Paul VI, who stands in the way of measures to bring down the birth rate is automatically working for a rise in the death rate," said the professor. He made no direct reference to the recent papal encyclical opposing artificial means of birth control.

20% of Students Have Sex on Mind in Class

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At any moment during a college classroom lecture, about 20 per cent of the men and women students are thinking about sex, a Detroit psychologist reports.

Only 20 per cent are paying attention to the lecture, says Paul Cameron, 28, of Wayne State University. The rest are reminiscing or thinking of other matters, Cameron told the American Psychological Association meeting in San Francisco.

He based his report on a nine-week course in introductory psychology for 85 college sophomores.

A gun was fired at random during the course, and the students reported what they were thinking about at the moment.

Gypsy Yes, Apple No, Says Elke

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elke Sommer, the dazzling blonde Teutonic beauty, attending one acting class and concluded they are a gross waste of time.

"The instructor asked me to walk out on stage with a young actor," Elke recalled the other day.

"I was told to imagine I was an apple. The actor was asked to pretend he was a tree trunk. It was impossible. I can pretend I am a gypsy or a princess, but never an apple."

The experience remains with the 26-year-old actress like an off-center dream.

Acting schools aren't the answer, Diction and graceful body movement can be taught, but not the rest.

"THAT'S why I have so much pity for the young actors who hang around Hollywood wasting days, months and years of their lives hoping to become movie and television stars.

"They take odd jobs as waiters or bus boys or parking attendants and blow all their money on acting lessons, even if it means sleeping in their automobiles."

"Most of the young men are very handsome, but have no talent. They squander their youth waiting for a break that will never come."

Elke, who currently is starring with Dean Martin in "The House of 7 Joys" at Columbia, is less critical of girls who hang out at drug stores and other locations near movie studios.

"A GIRL can always get married and raise a family," she explained. "But it's different with the young men. They don't have the proper training to start any kind of career. I've worked with some of them and others are friends.

Gypsy Yes, Apple No, Says Elke

"I tell them they are wasting their intellects. And it breaks my heart to see them take part-time jobs. They won't accept a steady job or occupation because, as they say, 'What if a good part should come along?'"

"The odds on a good role or a big movie are so small that there is almost no hope at all."

"INSTEAD of sitting around waiting they should get jobs driving trucks or painting houses. Some of them should go to college and study for a career not involving show business."

Elke was one of the fortunate ones. She came to Hollywood and started at the top with a starring role in "The Prize" after five small pictures in Europe.

"I don't know," Elke said. "Maybe it's because actors have never appealed to me as men. And I hate to see so many potentially successful young men ruin their lives by failing to achieve an ambition that will always escape them."

AGE OF 210

ELBERTON, Ga. (AP) — Joe, 210 years old, is alive and well in Elberton. Actually, Joe is only 30 but he's a dog.

Although Joe's master, Grady Jones — merely 79 — does not have a birth certificate for him, he remembers when and where he got the German pointer in 1938.

According to popular belief, one year in a dog's life is equal to seven years of human life and few reach the calendar age of 18.

Oh What Sneaks Admen Can Be

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

This is going to be one of those very crass materialistic commercials about television commercials that you don't even recognize — a non-flashing subliminal kind of thing.

It has to do with use of products on the screen.

You may recall the cry that went up when Clark Gable in a scene from "It Happened One Night," took off his shirt — and lo — he wasn't wearing an undershirt. This has been noted before, but I still remember the screams from the undershirt manufacturers who charged it was a plot to undermine the industry. Every male in the audience, after noting that the fashion was to go undershirtless, went home and threw away his undershirts.

This was remedied a few years ago when Marlon Brando made the undershirt popular. This time the shirt manufacturers felt the pinch.

ON RADIO, who does not recall the magic word "Hadaacol" dropped onto the air without any particular sequence sense by comics. I never knew anyone who drank the product, but it was the most talked-about word in the language for a time.

Automobiles are another item.

You see a lot of automobiles in TV shows and it's a very immature auto manufacturer-sponsor who doesn't occasionally have his brand used in the scenes in preference to Brand X. There have been cases where a non-auto sponsor was getting a heck of a lot of free advertising — assuming some sort of "arrangement" was not made — for identifying a star with a car. Rod Taylor, for instance, always drove a sharp little Sunbeam (if I remember "Long Kong" correctly). "The Saint" is hardly ever seen without his sporty Volvo and James Bond drove something special.

Since the Sunbeam and the Volvo are not out of the reach of many people, large numbers of them began appearing on the streets and I have no way of knowing how many of the drivers in their fantasies considered themselves Rod Taylor or whatever that fellow's name is who plays "The Saint."

WHEN I mentioned "arrangements" for display of an auto manufacturer's product, I wasn't just making it up. I have only to point to a Toyota Motor Co. news release which cites the fact that James Bond's car was the Toyota 2000 GT. It was manufactured for Sean Connery's films. Last year the company manufactured a gold production model for Twiggy. This was not out of simple admiration for Twiggy. Twiggy just happened to be official hostess for the firm's Motor Show.

Now this same Twiggy 2000 GT model is going to bestow some of its glamor on a TV series. Peter Kastner, who will occasionally be disguised as a female for "The Ugly Girl in Town," will be driving around in a "psychedelically" painted 2000 GT model car.

The only purpose in a column of this sort is to call the attention of the public to the fact that it ought to be aware of this subtle kind of TV commercialism.

It should be understood there are no "arrangements" between TeleVues and the manufacturers of sundry items. All items mentioned here are solely on the basis of their own previous ingenuity in getting their names and products before the public without employing the vulgar medium of straightforward advertising.

Firemen Ask, Get Protection on Runs

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit firemen will have police protection on all calls from now on, says Police Commissioner Johannes Spreen. The commissioner's order came after complaints by the Detroit Firefighters Association that firemen have been harassed by hostile crowds on fire runs, on rescue missions for heart attack victims, and other stricken persons.

Whatever Charisma Is, TV's Denver Has It

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Charisma" is the most overworked word among writers attempting to define an individual's personal charm or magnetism.

Roughly it means a spiritual or divine gift, a supernatural power.

Most often it is applied to politicians. The Kennedy family has it to spare.

Super movie stars have it: Cary Grant, Julie Andrews, Greg Peck.

The original definition has been corrupted to mean something akin to glamor, as you can see. It is an attractiveness, a winning grace or style.

If it can be translated into money at the boxoffice, high political office or a top-rated television show, then charisma is as valuable as uranium.

NOW SIT down and prepare yourself. By accepted standards, Bob Denver has charisma.

Denver is the slack-jawed star of "Gilligan's Island," "Dobie Gillis" and "The Good Guys," a new television series slated for the coming season.

I accused Denver of having charisma. He looked as if he should call his lawyer.

But he has it. Nobody succeeds at two television shows — "Gilligan's" ran four years, "Gilligan's" three years — unless millions of persons make an effort to tune in and watch.

For whatever reason, and to many it is a deep mystery, the American public enjoys watching Bob Denver.

He cannot be called handsome. He isn't a rugged he-man. Neither is he a great comedian like, say, Red Skelton. What he is, is an ex-schoolteacher.

BOB WAS also the first beatnik as co-star of "Dobie Gillis" on "Gilligan's Island" he was a total nincompoop.

But he makes people of all ages laugh with his slapstick falls and by contorting his mobile face into paroxysms of terror, stupidity, confusion and untarnished joy. Sometimes all at once.

In his new show Denver will play Rufus Butterworth, an inept cab driver who tools around in a 1926 Lincoln.

order today! Queen Mary color print

CONVERSATION PIECE
14" x 22" Brilliant full-color reproduction of original art depicting the Queen Mary at her future site offshore from Downtown Long Beach. Printed on finest quality paper stock. Suitable for framing. Send $5c to cover cost of handling and mailing in sturdy cardboard tube.

You hear the question all the time. All over the country. In Los Angeles. In Orange County. Here in Long Beach too. As good as the Independent and Press-Telegram's coverage is on the Queen, there's nothing like a picture to tell the story.

Now for the first time the I.P.T. is offering a full-color artist's rendering of the Queen Mary at her Permanent Berth on the north side of the Proposed Pier J Marina. Here the Queen will be "the crown jewel of the city's shoreline development," according to Linsch and Reynolds, the consulting firm hired by the city to design the ship's final home.

Enjoy this "preview" of the proposed new look for the grand old lady. Order one, two, ten or as many of the full-color prints as you wish. Each print must be ordered separately and sent out in its own mailing tube. Order for your home as a conversation piece. Send them to your friends and relatives back East... or right here in our own Southern California backyard. Everyone's asking... so let's start telling.

THE NEW 1969 PLYMOUTH ROAD RUNNER CONVERTIBLE

High-Test Plymouths Zip to Fore

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

The intermediate-size Plymouth Belvedere line for 1969 introduces two new models and a complete series of performance cars led by a new Road Runner convertible.

"These intermediate-size cars were major factors contributing to our record sales gain during 1968," Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth Division general manager said. "We expect further sales increases from the additional models and the many improvements throughout the line."

There are 18 models in the intermediate line, built in five series: GTX, Sport Satellite, Satellite, Road Runner and Belvedere. The new models are the Sport Satellite 4-door sedan, and the new convertible, which joins the coupe and hardtop in the Road Runner series. The cars go on sale September 19.

Plymouth intermediate cars have made outstanding records on drag strips and oval tracks and for 1969, performance capability is improved with even more options. On the GTX and Road Runner, hood scoops become functional, opening into an air-induction system called the Air Grabber on the GTX and the Coyote Duster on the Road Runner. The system can be regulated to push either outside or inside air into the engine, significantly increasing efficiency and performance.

Three optional axle ratios — 3.55:1, and two new ratios, 3.91:1 and 4.10:1 — further enhance the efficiency of the performance engines: the four-barrel 383-cubic-inch V8, the 426 hemi and the 440 wedge.

On the high-performance 426 and 440, Track Pack and Super Track Pack performance options are offered, featuring 4-speed manual transmission with a Hurst shifter, big 3.55 ratio axles, viscous fan drive, dual breaker distributor, Sure Grip differential, and on the Super Track Pack, disc brakes, and a 4.10 ratio axle.

Long-wearing fiberglass-helmed tires are part of the impressive array of performance equipment offered. For long-distance driving, the Turnpike Cruiser package is available with a 383-cubic-inch, two-barrel engine, automatic speed control, disc brakes, a 2.76:1 axle and undercoating.

An optional warning buzzer is offered to alert drivers when the car is parked with the headlights on.

Three Firemen Seriously Burned in Brush Blaze

OAKLAND (UPI) — Three Oakland firemen were seriously burned Saturday when a brush fire swept up a hill near Mills College and surrounded them.

The firemen, who suffered burns over 50 to 60 per cent of their bodies, were connecting firehoses when the flames from the brush fire climbed up a smoke-blanketed slope and leaped across some underbrush.

"All of a sudden I saw flame come over the top of the brush — flames about 20 feet high," said hoseman Jimmy Stanislaus, who managed to escape.

Stanislaus ran for help and fellow firemen, including Richard Brown, chief operator handling communications, were able to bring the injured men out.

In critical condition at St. Francis Memorial Hospital in San Francisco were Lt. John T. Carlyn, 36, Orinda, and Floyd de Marco, 45, Oakland. The third fireman, Terry Silveria, about 26, was in serious condition.

"I've seen a lot of people burned, but I never saw anyone burned like that," Brown said.

Woman on Airfield Killed by Propeller

OTTUMWA, Iowa (AP) — A young Oklahoma woman, walked onto the runway of Ottumwa Industrial Airport following an aerial demonstration Sunday and was killed when struck by a whirling propeller.

The woman was identified as Mrs. James R. Derby, 29, the wife of a research scientist for a petroleum corporation in Tulsa.

Phone Call Saves Long Trip in Same Name Death

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Before leaving from Massachusetts to attend the funeral, the brother of a man just murdered telephoned a friend of his brother in San Francisco.

"He can't be murdered," gasped the friend. "He's sitting right here in front of me."

Thus the coroner's office learned it had notified the wrong family of the death of Joseph Patrick Kennedy, 37, a waiter who was robbed, shot and killed Thursday as he walked his dog near his home.

Although the man's identification papers were missing, neighbors identified the victim. Seeking the name of a close relative, the coroner's office turned to the Waiter's Union. The union inexplicably provided information on Joseph Patrick Kennedy, 32, a barber.

The elder Kennedy, in Blackstone, Mass., was notified. Then the barber's brother decided to call the friend and the mix-up was unraveled.

The victim, it turned out, was a native of West Swazey, N.H., and did not know the other Kennedy.

No arrests have been made in the murder of Kennedy, the waiter.
